MERCURY AT 4 BELOW, MORE COLD ON WAY

Rural Schools Re-open After Winter's Coldest Weather; Roads, Streets Open.

SNOWFALL 7 INCHES IN ALL

Clear Skies and Warmer Due Tonight; New Zero Blast Expected by Sunday.

The coldest weather of the winter spread over the Richland county section today, dropping the mercury to an official four degrees below zero, but county rural schools re-opened and other activities were resumed as roads and streets were cleared of a seven-inch blanket.

Although the state-wide forecast predicted clear skies and a rising mercury tonight, a new cold wave from the northwest is scheduled to bring more snow and frigid weather by Sunday.

New Low For Winter.

Today's low temperature reading, which was recorded at 8:30 a. m. by Observer Enos Sprunger, was four degrees under the previous low of zero on Jan. 9. The mercury this morning moved up to zero at 9 a. m. and to 18 degrees above at noon.

The record cold came unexpectedly, since forecasts generally were for higher temperatures last night as the cold wave moved eastward. The drop to below zero followed a half-inch snowfall in the county last night which brought the total fall for the past three days to approximately seven inches.

With the high mark yesterday at 19 degrees above zero, the average temperature for the past 24 hours was 7.5 above as against the normal 23.2 degrees.

Reports from school officials and the office of County Engineer Howard C. Ewart said all rural schools were re-opened today after a two-day forced vacation because of the snowdrifts in rural areas.

With all available equipment and men at work yesterday, county and state routes in the county were cleared of snow, and many of the township routes were opened, permitting travel in some rural sections for the first time in three days.

Snow had been scraped from main streets in Mansfield today, but in the residential sections piles of snow remained along the streets after plows had moved the white blanket from the paving.

In the nation, the death toll from storms, cold and floods mounted to 12 with the deaths of two coal miners who drowned in a swollen Arkansas creek. Railroad boxcars provided temporary homes for flood refugees at Calion, Ark., as the mid-west flood moved southward to the Gulf of Mexico.

TROOPS CLASH

400,000 Battle Hand to Hand on Eastern Spanish Front.

HENDAYE, France, At the Spanish Frontier — (AP) — Forty thousand Spanish government and insurgent troops fought hand-to-hand today on a five mile section of the eastern front.

Repeated government charges threatened to sever an important insurgent supply artery between the villages of Singra and Torre Le Carcel, about 30 miles north of Teruel.

Fighting was general all along the line of the highway to Calamocha, which insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco had used to feed men and munitions to his forces attempting to win back Teruel, captured by government troops five weeks ago.

The government strategy was to strike at a number of points along the line simultaneously.

OFFICER SLAIN

Another Wounded After Holdup Gang Flees N. Y. Shop.

NEW YORK—(AP)—One policeman was killed, another wounded, two gunmen were captured and three others escaped when a holdup gang shot its way out of a Bronx pawnshop today, lootless.

Sergeant David Kilpatrick was slain when he and other officers answered an alarm surreptitiously tripped by a clerk after the bandits entered. Patrolman Royal Pollitt suffered a head wound.

HEARS APPEAL

Geneva Delegates Study Plan To Give Arms To China.

GENEVA —(AP)— Delegates of Great Britain, France and Russia today heard China's appeal for aid against Japan and were reliably reported to have discussed a plan to supply China with arms and munitions. The delegates "hoped" to obtain United States co-operation.

Steel of Bridge Loses to Winter's Ice—Michigan Town Digs Out

A giant bridge falls victim to the frigid wrath of winter, and a city battles to dig its way out of huge snow drifts. At upper left, a Muskegon, Mich., street, after a blizzard that piled up drifts to a height of 30 feet in northern sections of the state. Upper right, a picture taken at the exact moment the famous Falls View bridge at Niagara Falls collapsed yesterday afternoon, from the terrific pressure of an ice jam. END OF PAROLE PROBE IN SIGHT

Special Grand Jury Expected to Adjourn Next Week; Costs County $12k.

Although representatives of the attorney general's office would not comment, it was believed that the special Richland county grand jury investigating paroles had about reached the end of its inquiry and would adjourn early next week.

The grand jury went into recess yesterday afternoon, and will reconvene Monday morning to start its third week.

Although a great deal of its time to date has been spent looking into financial transactions at the reformatory, which appears to have little bearing on paroles, Assistant Attorney General Paul Hergenroeder, who was in charge of Thursday's investigation in the absence of Assistant Attorney General George Hurley, said "the whole thing interwoven." He would not enlarge on the statement.

When the panel meets again Monday, it will continue its inspection of financial affairs of the institution, Hergenroeder said. Representatives of two banks were heard yesterday, and Hergenroeder said several subpoenaes had been issued for other banking records, but declined to reveal what they were.

Meanwhile, at the courthouse it was learned that to date the cost of the investigation to Richland county was about $428. Most

BUCKEYE BANK RESOURCES UP

Increase $5,955,000 In 1937, State Official Says.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State banking Superintendent S. H. Squire announced today that total resources of 462 state banks showed an increase of $5,955,783 during the year year 1937.

Cash and reserves increased $13,551,712, he said, and capital notes or debentures paid off or retired totaled $5,564,275.

"In spite of the fact that in certain parts of the country deposits in banks show a decrease, our Ohio state banks for the latter six months of 1937 show an increase in total deposits of $10,992,297," he said. "The increase is attributable mainly to savings deposits."

AGREE TO JOIN IN HELPING NEEDY

City, County Officials Tackle Problem, Decide to Keep Present Relief Set-up.

The Richland county relief problem, which has grown to serious proportions, was considered by county and city officials in an hour's conference yesterday afternoon at the courthouse, with both the city and county agreeing to join in caring for the needy families in the city.

County commissioners, in whose hands the whole burden was thrust by the recently-enacted relief bill, called in Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Service-safety Director Tracy C. Styert and Auditor Paul Kelley to hear an outline of the relief situation.

None of the city representatives would comment after the session, Mayor Hunter explaining that "it is still too early to say what will be done as our plan is still in the embryo stage."

The city agreed, however, that

Crowds View Wreckage Of Ice-Crushed Niagara Span

'Honeymoon Bridge,' Battered for 30 Hours, Collapses With Roar, Plunges 200 Feet Into River.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(AP)—An international crowd of several thousand lined the lofty banks of Niagara gorge today for a glimpse of twisted steel and concrete on the icy carpet far below—all that remained of America's famous "Honeymoon Bridge."

With a roar that drowned the cataract's thunder, the towering structure succumbed late yesterday to a 30-hour battering by the worst Niagara river ice jam in 30 years.

It was the second span on the site to fall from attacks by nature. In 1889 a giant suspension span was blown down in a gale.

Thousands See Plunge.

Thousands watched the shiny tons of steel plunge 200 feet onto the grinding river ice, so thick that it prevented the shattered bridge remnants from sinking into the 175-foot depths of Niagara river.

Even the gigantic lights on the falls were out last night because the generating plant of the Ontario Hydro Electric commission was covered almost entirely by the ice jam and forced to close.

Company officials estimated damage at nearly a million dollars.

U. S. Meterologist James H. Spencer, at Buffalo, blamed a "combination of bad weather circumstances" for the collapse of the bridge.

DUE TODAY

McDill Scheduled to Report Sewage Plant Findings.

Bruce McDill, engineer from the state health department, who inspected the Mansfield sewage disposal plant Wednesday afternoon, was due back in Columbus today to submit a report on his findings to F. H. Waring, chief engineer.

Associated Press dispatches to The News-Journal today said that McDill had not yet returned to the capital. He left Mansfield Wednesday evening to go to Doylestown, near Akron, before returning to Columbus.

The city will await his report before taking any action toward making the final payment of $6,089 on the plant, Mayor Claude M. Hunter has indicated. McDill told the mayor he would probably receive a copy of the report the first of next week. The final payment is due Feb. 6.

LINER GUARDED

Japanese Goodwill Delegates Here, Police Protect Them.

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— Extraordinary activities of the U. S. coast guard and waterfront police on the arrival of the Japanese liner Tiyo Maru resulted in unverified reports today that officials had been informed of a possible effort to bomb the ship.

Among the 158 passengers were members of a Japanese goodwill delegation. All passengers were guarded closely when they disembarked yesterday.

BANS LOTTERY INSURANCE

EAST LIVERPOOL—(AP)—Sale of lottery insurance was under a ban here today. Mayor Lee Copenhaver instructed police to halt the activity of four men who, the mayor asserted, sold 10-cent insurance against bank night losses in case of absence from theaters at the time of drawings.

MULE PRAISED

But Farmer Lands In Court As Tipsy Driver.

DENNIS, N. C.—(AP)—A. H. Westbrook, Hartnett county farmpended sentence by Judge Duncan Wilson.

State Patrolman J. F. Bradshaw testified in Recorder's court that the mule was "just leading him along the road" in a wagon.

"In fact, the mule was the brains of the outfit," Bradshaw told the court.

BATES URGES 7 MORE OFFICERS

Chief's Annual Report Calls For Extra Motorcycle and Replacing of 2 Cruisers.

Recommendations of Police Chief Meade K. Bates for seven additional officers and a motorcycle together with the replacement of two police cruisers marked the annual report of the police department released today by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

Bates pointed out that the additional personnel was necessary because of the increase in population and the increased value of property within the city of Mansfield.

The request for additional men by the police department has been made almost annually in the past 10 years.

Mayor Hunter commenting on the report today, said he intended to take the request for additional officers before council Tuesday

Rosemeyer, U. S. Cup Winner, Dies in Germany.

BERLIN—(AP)—Bernd Rosemeyer, famed German racing driver and 1937 winner of the Vanderbil cup in the United States, was killed today in an automobile race on the Frankfort on the Main Darmstadt road.

ALIEN RELIEF ACT FACES VETO

Measure Which Requires Citizenship Papers.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A legislative measure that would require aliens to file intentions to become U. S. citizens before they could receive state relief, headed today toward veto by Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The governor told a special committee from the house yesterday that he intended to kill the bill which has passed both legislative chambers and caused a rush for first citizenship papers in certain Ohio cities, notably Cleveland.

Governor Davey said that in addition to the clause on aliens, his veto would be based upon objections to these features of the bill:

A clause that would set up a board of appeals which, the governor said, virtually would strip of authority the relief director established by the measure. (Counties could appeal to the board from decisions of the director).

A provision for publication of relief information which, the governor said, lacked clarity and might be construed as requiring publication of names of all relief clients.

Another clause, empowering the speaker of the house and lieutenant governor to appoint investigators to inquire into relief needs in various counties and authorizing expenditure of $10,000

BOOST OHIO WPA

State's Rolls to Be Increased by 12,000, Bulkley Says.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Works Progress Administration rolls in Ohio will be increased by 12,000, Senator Bulkley (D-Ohio) announced today.

He said Howard Hunter, director of WPA's Region 4 with headquarters in Chicago, informed him the additional jobs were decided upon to meet condition ins many Ohio cities. The increase, plus the boost of 4,000 a week ago, brought the Ohio WPA roll to 131,000.

ROOSEVELT IN PLEA TO BOOST NAVAL FORCES

Congress Told $20,000,000 Needed In Addition to Present Finances.

LISTS 7-POINT PROGRAM

Requests Immediate Building of 2 Dreadnaughts and 2 New Naval Cruisers.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — President Roosevelt today called on congress to authorize a long-term billion dollar defense program and asked immediate start on construction of two more dreadnaughts and two more cruisers.

Bulwarking his program, Mr. Roosevelt asked for $29,250,000 in immediate army and navy additions plus the cost of starting two new capital ships and cruisers —estimated at about $10,000,000.

As a corrallary to his arms recommendations, the president asked congress to enact legislation to prevent profiteering in future wars and to insure equalization of war burdens.

Lower Than Expected.

Mr. Roosevelt's immediate spending request was sharply lower than had been anticipated but his long term program, largely devoted to a 20 per cent increase in the authorized strength of the American navy will require spending of close to one billion dollars.

Completion of the recommended naval program would give the United States a navy of strength equal to Britain's mighty fighting fleet, the world's strongest.

The president's requests were over and above regular army and navy estimates which, for this year, total approximately another that our present national defense is, "in the light of the increasing armaments of other nations, inadequate for purposes of national security."

He cited that wars currently in progress in Spain and China and the almost universal trend toward armament increases as the causes for his alarm for the United States' present position.

Seeks More Ships.

Specifically, the president asked congress to authorize and appropriate for the immediate start of construction of two more battleships, bringing the total of these floating fortresses under construction for the American navy to six.

Simultaneously with presentation of the president's special message, Rep. Carl Vinson, D., Ga., chairman of the house naval affairs committee, introduced a bill to give congressional authorization to the long-time naval building program. His bill provides a flat 20 per cent increase in the combat strength of the navy.

It authorizes construction of three new battleships. However, the president called for immediate start of construction on only two of the three dreadnaughts which Vinson would authorize.

The Vinson bill is merely an au-

NEAR CLIMAX

Wright's Testimony on Double Slaying Due Monday.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Dapper, 38-year-old Paul A. Wright, near nervous collapse as his trial once again was delayed today, will tell the jury Monday his version of what drove him to kill his wife, Evelyn, and John Kimmel, his close friend.

This announcement was made by Defense Attorney Jerry Geisler, who awaited resumption of Wright's trial for his life this afternoon.

Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull postponed the trial until then because of other court duties.

The appearance of Wright, only living witness to the tragedy in his Glendale home early Nov. 9, is expected to climax the trial.

PARLEY FAILS

Committee Unable To Agree On Holding Company Ban.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An interdepartmental banking committee apparently failed today to reach a complete agreement on proposals to abolish bank holding companies.

After the meeting, a spokesman would say only that "progress" had been made. He indicated the subject would be discussed at future meetings.

Jap Who Slapped U. S. Diplomat "Only Did Duty," Japan Says

SHANGHAI—(AP)—A Japanese military spokesman declared today the Japanese sentry who slapped the face of John M. Allison, ranking United States diplomat at Nanking, was "only doing his duty" and would not be punished.

He added that anyone disobeying orders of a Japanese sentry could be shot, and said that an apology tendered to Allison merely was a "gesture of courtesy."

Earlier the Japanese spokesman had said Allison, third secretary in charge of the United States embassy, had adopted what Japanese regarded as an "insolent attitude," and that Japanese authorities were taking a serious view of his actions.

The Japanese embassy spokesman gave this version of the incident Wednesday, in which the Japanese soldier struck Allison:

Allison, Charles H. Riggs (another American), Japanese consular police, a Chinese woman and two Chinese men went to a building used as a Japanese barracks on the trail of a man involved in an attack on a woman at the University of Nanking. Allison and Riggs refused to obey the sentry's command to halt and attempted to push their way into the courtyard, whereupon the sentry slapped both of them.

88 Graduate Tonight, 2,900 City Pupils Win Promotions

Today was an important day in the city's public senior and junior high schools, as some 3,000 pupils in the Senior high and John Simpson and Hedges junior high schools were promoted this afternoon to the next higher grade, as well as receiving their final reports for the first semester of the year.

This evening, in the Senior high school auditorium, 88 boys and girls will leave the school system forever — climaxing 12 primary and secondary years of schooling—when they are presented with diplomas at commencement exercises.

The commencement address will be delivered by Dr. C. L. Anspach, president of Ashland college. His subject will be, "Frontiers, Old and New." The exercises will begin at 8 p. m.

Returning to school this noon, after being dismissed yesterday noon, students at the three schools were given their final grades for the semester, and went through an abbreviated schedule of their classes for the next semester, which begins Modnay morning.

The number of seniors who will graduate tonight, again reached 88 today as high school officials announced that through an error the name of Vivian Viola Valentine was omitted from the list of seniors. Her name was also omitted from the names of the graduates appearing on the commencement program, they said.

WINDJAMMERS IN GRAIN RACE REDUCED TO 13

Scandinavian Fleet Sails For Australia to Get Cargo of Wheat.

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—(U.P.)—Nearly all the remaining square-rigged ships in the world are headed "down under" to Australia to participate in the famous annual "grain race."

Thirteen large sailing ships, "windjammers," have cleared European ports for the wheat-loading centers of South Australia. But not a one of them is flying the Union Jack or the Stars and Stripes. The honor for the fastest passage to Falmouth will be won either by a Finnish or Swedish ship this year.

All but two of the 13 ships belong to Capt. Gustav Erikson of Mariehamn in the Aaland Islands, and they fly the Finnish flag. They are the four-masters Passat, Pommern, Parma, Olivebank, Lawhill, Viking, Mosholu and Archibald Russell, and the three-masters Killoran, Penang and Winterhude.

94-Day Trip Won in 1937.

The Passat and Pommern both made pasages of 94 days last year, though the Pommern claimed victory by a few hours.

The other two square-riggers bound for Australia are both training ships, the Swedish Abraham Rydberg and the German Admiral Karpfanger. The latter took part in last year's race as L'Avenir, but has since been sold by Capt. Erikson to the Hamburg-American Line and refitted as a training ship.

One veteran of many grain races will not be there this year, or ever again. She was the C. B. Pedersen, which was sunk in collision off the Azores on her homeward voyage last year.

For the first time for many years most of the ships have obtained cargoes for the outward voyage to Australia this year.

Sailing Dates Vary.

The "windjammers" will load grain over several weeks time. Sailings usually take place between February and April, the Southern hemisphere's summer. The ships actually do not race each other as sailing dates vary too greatly for that. The winner is determined by the elapsed time between Australia and the English Channel. The vessels usually put in at Falmouth for orders. The winner's time depends greatly on the weather.

The Australia wheat trade profits from these "windjammer" races, because the cost of transporting grain to Europe is comparatively low as the ships have no fuel expense. The shipping cost per ton usually is under $10 and the vessels can carry from 4,000 to 6,000 tons of wheat.

MINE MULE KICKS OFF

As Players Get Ready For Next Production

The director is the boss in any theatrical production and the Community Players Thespians gather around Helen Bacon to work out some of the "action" problems of "Kind Lady," which the Players will present Tuesday night at Senior high school auditorium. This interest holding play, with an English setting and characters introduce a number of new players in the important roles. Seated on the floor, left to right are Paul Bell and Verene DeForge. In the second row, seated are Mrs. Sylvia Henderson, A. B. Robb, Mrs. Bacon, the director; and Norma Johnston. At the rear, left to right are Mrs. Thornton Moore, Joan Balliett and Perry Cook.

CROONING TO PRISONERS WORST PUNISHMENT, SAYS OFFICIAL

LONDON—(INS)—The lowest form of punishment for convicts is crooning, according to Charlwood Dunkley, secretary of a British prison reform society.

Charlwood Dunkley bitterly assailed the much maligned "Boop-Boop-a-Doop" style of singing when he read that three crooners of a London band took part in a West End cabaret show given to 20 prisoners of Maidstone Gaol, Kent, Eng.

"It is quite unfair to inflict further punishment on convicts who are already paying a heavy price for their sins," said Dunkley.

With his chest swelling with indignation Dunkley added:

"It should be a deterrent to any man to become a criminal if he is going to have crooning inflicted on him when he gets in gaol.

"If crooning is going to become a regular form of entertainment in our prisons it should, of course, have the effect of reducing crime. That is the only thing I can say in favor of it."

"But to take crooning into prisons, where convicts must have quite enough to put up with already is unreasonable and reprehensible.

"No one objects to good wholesome entertainment, but as for crooning, well—" Dunkley could say no more; indignation robbed him of words.

While there are no means of telling whether the prisoners in Maidstone Gaol agree with Dunkley's sentiments about crooning, they at any rate have a taste for more serious fare as well.

"Journey's End," R. C. Sherriff's famous war play, has been chosen for the first production of the goal's newly-formed dramatic society, and will be staged there in February or March.

All the parts will be played by prisoners, and they will also provide the sound effects.

Brown testified: "I like my boy. I beat him for his own good. I did not intend to beat him so badly."

FORMER TURKISH SOCIETY WOMAN NOW MOTHERS PUGILISTS

("SUMMIT, N. J.—Butch Bullock is training for his heavyweight fight with Joe Slugsem at Madame Bey's camp here...." How many times have you read that on the sports page? Did you ever wonder what that camp was like? Who Madame Bey was? Why so many fighters trained at her place? Here are all the answers.)

By DILLON GRAHAM

SUMMIT, N. J.—(AP)—Madame Hranoush Bey hasn't been phased by anything since the time the French fighters demanded lobster salad for breakfast.

Mme. Bey operates a boxers' training camp in the Jersey hills west of Newark. For 18 years she's been mothering broods of bruising belters. She's had all nationalities and races, kindly gentlemen and surly brutes and she thinks it is interesting watching them condition to wallop the daylights out of their fellow man. Her life story is a fantastic tale. She came from Constantinople in 1898, the bride of Sidky Bey, Turkish diplomat. Mme. Bey quickly captivated Washington society. She danced at the White House. She lived gaily in the capital's diplomatic whirl.

Mme. Bey had a strong and beautiful voice. She sang in concerts and her mezzo-soprano notes with their contralto range were heard in Carnegie hall. Stately in her Paris gowns, she graced Fifth avenue drawing rooms.

Then came the World war and her husband resigned rather than accept an appointment to Berlin. He flourished in business for several years, then disaster struck and the couple retired to their 30 acres in the Jersey highlands.

There was little money and society folks couldn't farm, so the Beys accepted Freddie Welsh's offer to take over his nearby health farm. Welsh had been unable to attract customers.

Mme. Bey knew nothing about boxers or cooking, but she read books on cooking, diet, and boxing. Finally, the fighters started coming, and, when Welsh saw the success he wanted to take charge again. So Mme. Bey tramped back to her acres and behind her tramped all the boxers. They had decided to stick by her.

They bought lumber and built a training shack—11 pugs including Champions Johnny Wilson and Joe Lynch. These fighters passed on the word that good food, good accommodations and fine treatment were waiting for fighters at Mme. Bey's and business prospered.

She has a large, unpretentious frame house, off the main highway. And up a short, steep hill sits a modern, well-equipped gymnasium. Her house is old-fashioned. Heavily-stuffed furniture crowds the rooms. Turkish ornaments are all about. On the walls hang pictures of Washington society, a White House reception, and of the group, including Mme. Bey, standing beside President McKinley a few moments before he was assassinated at Buffalo.

Sometimes she rocks in her room and reminisces over the glamorous old days when she was a part of society. But she doesn't yearn to return. She's never had regrets, she is happy and finds life attractive in her role of parent and disciplinarian to tough, hard-punching ringsters. The years and sorrow—her husband died not long ago—have taken toll of her beauty. She's still vivacious and her eyes sparkle but her back is hunched and her cheeks are wrinkled.

Sometimes she entertains the fighters with arias of operas she used to sing.

Because she speaks six languages, foreign boxers feel at home at her place.

Max Schmeling, Freddie Steele and Tommy Farr have trained with her in recent weeks. Through the years she has had most of the champions—Gene Tunney, Mickey Walker, Paul Berlenbach, Primo Carnera, Battling Siki, Lou Ambers.

Tunney, Walker, Steele and Schmeling are her favorites. Her eyes light up as she calls Gentlemen Gene her "polished emerald."

She gets $4.50 a day from the fighters. She is very fond of Mike Jacobs, the promoter, who has sent many fighters to her. She can accommodate 20 fighters.

Her son, Rustem Bey, lives nearby. He's 25 and police chief of Chatham township.

"It's a wonderful life, knowing these strong boys, observing their moods and trying, unobstrusively, to mother them," she says.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

ONE OF THE most dramatic moments in world series history was supplied back in 1926 when Grover Cleveland Alexander, then with the Cardinals, strode to the plate to halt a threatening New York Yankee rally by striking out the rookie Tony Lazzeri.

Many stories have been written and told about this episode, and, although there was a suspicion that Alexander was a bit under the weather on that particular day, the rumor was never substantiated until this week.

BILL KILLEFER, Alexander's batteryman at St. Louis, explains the entire story in an interview in the Sporting News this week. Alexander was a bit pixilated, according to Killefer, now manager of the Sacramento, and blames Alex's habit of drinking to the World war.

"Alexander was no easy pitcher to handle, even if his control was good," said Killefer. "He had a sinking fast ball that was apt to tear your hand off. He actually threw a curve as a pitchout, for it was easier for the catcher to handle.

Bill Killefer

"I always thought that Alex was a changed man after the World war. Before he went to France he was more or less careful about his drinking, but when he was demobilized he would drink anything and at any time.

"I will never forget his wonderful work in the World's Series of 1926. Alexander beat Shawkey in the sixth game, 10 to 2, to even the series. We had Haines in reserve for the seventh game, scheduled Sunday, but we knew that if anything happened to Haines, the only logical relief man would be Alexander.

"After the Saturday victory, Hornsby and I talked the situation over. We were back at the hotel early and I suggested a plan to Hornsby.

"Go tell him that you will give him a case of whisky for the train ride home Sunday night if he stays sober tonight.

"Hornsby thought the idea a good one and went up to his room and duly informed him. But Alex could not lay off the stuff. By 7:30 he was in the hotel lobby showing evidence that he had been hitting it up.

"Hornsby and I took him up in a room and locked him inside and left orders for the phone operator to cut off all service, so he could not order anything.

THE NEXT morning, Sunday, Alexander started drinking again and showed it when he went to the park. Nevertheless, I told him that he would have to pitch if Haines went wrong.

"All right," replied Alex, "I'll go in, but I can't warm up except by throwing four or five balls. I have no strength left."

"Then in the seventh inning, with the bases loaded and two out, Alex staggered to the mound and struck out Tony Lazzeri. He also held the Yankees safe in the eighth and ninth to protect our slender one-run lead that made us champions of the world. He had stopped the Yankees dead when he did not have the strength to warm up properly."

MILWAUKEE—Hans Kampfer, 224, Germany, defeated Gus Sonnenberg, 215, Boston, one fall.

Grade School Skaters Vie Saturday

Elementary school skaters will have their inning Saturday when they stage their ice carnival at North Lake park.

The director of the carnival, Harry Mehock, assistant athletic director of Mansfield high school, expects an entry of between two and three hundred competitors. Entries for the carnival are being made through principals of the schools.

Events for both boys and girls have been arranged, Mehock said, and the competition will get under way promptly at 10 a. m. The entire meet will be run off in the morning.

Ribbons will be awarded for the first three places in the various events, Mehock stated.

The Simpson Junior high school carnival, tentatively set for Saturday afternoon, will not be held.

SULLIVAN BLAMES TRIBE TROUBLES ON OVER-MANNED PITCHING STAFF

SARASOTA, Fla. — (AP)—Billy Sullivan, who shares the catching duties for Cleveland, today blamed some of the Indians' baseball troubles on an over-manned pitching staff.

Listing Mel Harder, Johnny Allen, Bob Feller, Willis Hudlin, Dennis Galehouse, Earl Whitehill and Lloyd Brown as the Indian regulars, Sullivan said they could not start games often enough to keep in top form.

"A regular pitcher likes to start every fourth day," he explained. "But with this galaxy of talent, some of them had to wait five to eight days between starts.

"Then they have to get acclimated all over again, of course. A pitcher who is not worked often enough loses his mental and physical effectiveness.

"That's why you often see staffs consisting of three good starts and good relief pitchers become more effective in actual competition."

Sullivan, son of a famed major league catcher, thinks highly of Bob Feller.

"Feller is just one of those ball players who come along once in a decade," he commented. "He's bound to be a real star."

Selkirk's Name Rubbed Off Holdout List.

NEW YORK — (U.P.)—George Selkirk's name was rubbed off the New York Yankees' holdout list today. The outfielder was signed for approximately $13,000, a slight increase over his 1937 salary. This left Joe DiMaggio, Lefty Gomez and Tom Henrich among the Yanks dissatisfied with their 1938 offers. Pitcher Monte Pearson also was reported balking at a cut in his '37 stipend.

Tyger Mermen Face Fremont

Meet Undefeated Team In In Tank Here Saturday.

More trouble is in sight for the Mansfield high school natators Saturday afternoon when they engage the crack Fremont Ross squad in the Mansfield tank.

While the Mansfield team has shown improvement, Paul Schlegel, who is assisting with the coaching, doubts whether the Tygers are ready to topple such a formidable foe as Fremont.

The visiting Little Giants will be seeking their fifth straight victory in the Mansfield tank. They have already beaten Cleveland Heights, Toledo DeVilbiss, and Toledo Scott twice.

Should the visiting splashers triumph here, they will present Ross with the 28th victory in 29 engagements.

Included on the Fremont roster is Bob Serwinski, state diving champion.

THE CELEBRATION OF FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE OF SEPTEMBER 23rd, 1937

MY own personal experience in the work that we have been doing at the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation for over ten years, leads me to the very definite conclusion that the best results in attempting to eradicate this disease cannot be secured by approaching the problem through any single one of its aspects, whether that be preventive studies in the laboratory, emergency work during epidemics, or after treatment. For over ten years at the Foundation at Warm Springs, Georgia, we have devoted our effort almost entirely to the study of improved treatment of the after effects of the illness. During these years other agencies, which we have from time to time assisted, have devoted their energies to other phases of the fight. I firmly believe that the time has now arrived when the whole attack on this plague should be led and directed, though not controlled, by one national body. And it is for this purpose that a new national foundation for infantile paralysis is being created.

"As I have said, the general purpose of the new foundation will be to lead, direct, and unify the fight on every phase of this sickness. It will make every effort to ensure that every responsible research agency in this country is adequately financed to carry on investigations into the cause of infantile paralysis and the methods by which it may be prevented. It will endeavor to eliminate much of the needless after-effect of this disease—wreckage caused by the failure to make early and accurate diagnosis of its presence. We all know that improper care during the acute stage of the disease, and the use of antiquated treatment, or downright neglect of any treatment, are the cause of thousands of crippled, twisted, powerless bodies now. Much can be done along these lines right now. The new foundation will carry on a broad-gauged educational campaign, prepared under expert medical supervision, and this will be placed within the reach of the doctors and the hospitals of the country. The practicing physician is in reality the front line fighter of the sickness, and there is much existing valuable knowledge that should be disseminated to him.

"And then there is also the tremendous problem as to what is to be done with those hundreds of thousands already ruined by the after-effects of this affliction. To investigate, to study, to develop every medical possibility of enabling those so afflicted to become economically independent in their local communities will be one of the chief aims of the new foundation.

"Those who today are fortunate in being in full possession of their muscular power naturally do not understand what it means to a human being paralyzed by this disease to have that powerlessness lifted even to a small degree. It means the difference between a human being dependent on others, and an individual who can be wholly independent. The public has little conception of the patience and time and expense necessary to accomplish such results. But the results are of the utmost importance to the individual.

"I have enlisted the sincere interest of several representative and outstanding individuals who are willing to initiate and carry on the work of the new foundation. Its personnel will be announced as soon as it is completed."

The President himself has founded the new national Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—You and a million others are invited to send a dollar Bill or more, and join the President and the Trustees in the work of this Foundation.

Why You Should Become a Founder

Every man, woman, and child in the country has wanted to know how to "do his bit" in this great fight against the dread Infantile Paralysis. How aid could be given to the doctors in their front line fight . . . to the great scientists and medical minds who are searching tirelessly to find out how they can best combat poliomyelitis (Infantile Paralysis) to the great institutions that are throwing their every resource of man power and money to conquer the universal enemy.

Now at last the groups who have devoted so much time in the fight against Infantile Paralysis have been organized into the NATIONAL FOUNDATION FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Here in one organization the direction of the nation-wide attack has been centered. Under the inspiring example of the President of the United States . . . under the able administration of leaders from every field of endeavor . . . the endless fight will be continued against this disease that costs thousands of lives and over $300,000,000.00 every year. This fight will be continued relentlessly until victory is won. You can become an important fighter in this great Cause.

You can lend priceless assistance by sending a dollar Bill or more to the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday—and every dollar will go direct to the new national Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to carry out the plans of the President.

GOLD, AIRCRAFT STOCKS LEAD RECOVERY MOVE

Aviation Department Builds Hopes on President's Rearmament Message.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Gold mines and aircrafts led the stock market in another recovery attempt today.

Volume was exceptionally light, however, and many issues were only slightly improved near the second hour.

Steels had the benefit of a much better than expected earnings statement from Bethlehem which came after yesterday's close. Faint inflationary sentiment continued to inspire the gold group. The aviation department built hopes on the president's rearmament message due at noon. Bonds and commodities were a trifle uneven.

Market analysts found a moderately optimistic note in the week-end trade survey of Dun & Bradstreet.

The review placed retail distribution in leading centers throughout the country at 1 to 3 per cent above last week and 2 to 5 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1937 period.

Wholesale demand, it was added, topped the preceding week and was 4 to 8 per cent better than a year ago.

BATES URGES 7 MORE OFFICERS

Chief's Annual Report Calls For Extra Motorcycle and Replacing of 2 Cruisers.

night, with recommendations that the men be added to the department at once.

"I am a strong advocate for a larger police force," he said, "and I feel that our traffic congestion would be lessened if there were more patrolmen in the business district."

The mayor also said additional motorcycle men were also needed to patrol the streets in an effort to curb careless and reckless driving that resulted in a marked increase in automobile accidents and fatalities in the past year.

Chief Bates' recommendations call for three additional patrolmen, two additional motorcycle officers, and two more plain clothesmen.

In reviewing the department's activities, the report showed that 51 fewer arrests were made during 1937 than the year previous. Last year 1,397 arrests netted the city $19,087.51 in fines as compared to the $13,069.54 collected from 1,448 arrests in 1936, an increase of more than $6,000.

Property loss from burglaries and thefts amounting to $14,074 jumped approximately 700 per cent over the 1936 total of $2,200, the report said. Last year stolen property loss was reported at $19,509, with $5,434 being recovered, as compared with the 1936 total of $20,000 and a recovery of all but $2,200.

However, 90 stolen automobiles with a value of $35,062.46 were recovered in the past year as against $6 with a value of $23,975 in 1936, Bates said. Twelve stolen cars were recovered for other cities and seven still remained unaccounted for.

Although juvenile delinquency has been reported on the increase, the report showed that the police last year turned over 82 juvenile prisoners to juvenile court as compared to 93 for 1936. The report also showed that 26 fugitives from justice were arrested by the department during the year.

During the past year police handled 202 more complains than were reported in 1936. Last year complaints totaled 7,185 as compared with the 1936 total of 6,983.

A marked increase was shown in automobile accidents that rose from 1,152 in 1936, to 1,378 last year, and where only three fatalities were recorded in 1936, a total of five were reported in 1937.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 5

Personal Exemptions.

In addition to the personal exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each dependent, defined by income-tax law and regulations as a person under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" means not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

In order to be entitled to the $400 credit, the taxpayer must furnish the dependent his or her chief support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency and not mere legal dependency. For example, a father whose children receive half or more of their support from a trust fund or other separate source is not entitled to the credit.

Neither relationship nor residence is a factor in the allowance of the $400 credit for a dependent. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities. If husband and wife both contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and may not be divided between them.

A single person who supports in his home an aged mother is entitled not only to the $400 credit for a dependent but also to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family. A widower supporting under similar circumstances a dependent child under 18 years of age also is entitled to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

Under the Revenue Act of 1936 both the personal exemption and the credit for dependents are required to be prorated where the status of the taxpayer changed during the year.

AGREE TO JOIN IN HELPING NEEDY

City, County Officials Tackle Problem, Decide to Keep Present Relief Set-up.

the present set-up is the best for the administration of aid for the indigent, and promised to place the matter of appropriating funds before council at an early date.

No estimates of the share each is to pay were available, but County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said the city would be asked to supply "the difference between the total county relief load and the amount the county can provide.

"The real problem before us now," Wolfe added, "is to raise enough money each month to obtain the state allocation of $66,000 to Richland county for the year."

The county and its subdivisions must furnish half that amount in matching funds before the allocations will be made on a monthly basis.

Neither the city nor county made any appropriation for direct relief when drafting their 1938 budgets and money for this purpose will have to come from the general operating fund or from the transfer of funds, it was pointed out.

"We hope for a let-up in the relief demand within two or three months," Wolfe said, adding that "if it continues at the present rate of expense we will be swamped with debts."

The county already owes about $30,000 in relief bills for the past two months and there is nothing in the relief fund with which to meet them.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners, said after yesterday's conference that figures concerning the probable relief requirements for the year would be compiled within the next few days and submitted to the city.

Each sub-division, he said, will be required to provide its share of the matching funds.

Bucyrus Scouts Receive $1,000 Fund Under Will

BUCYRUS—Bequests of $1,000 to the Bucyrus Boy Scouts organization and to the Oakwood Cemetery association were affirmed in a court ruling by Judge C. U. Ahl Thursday, in the George Miller estate.

Judge Ahl ruled that the bequests were legal in the petition filed by H E. Kiess, administrator of the estate who asked instructions from the court in administering the estate.

The remainder of the property will be given to the widow, Dell Miller.

LUCKY AT LAST

McMINNVILLE, Ore.—(INS)—Twice Oregon state 4-H club health champion and entitled to an expense-free trip to Chicago, 15-year-old Barbara Sergeant both times was prevented by circumstances from taking the trip. But she got it anyway this month, when a drive for funds in this section netted enough to send her east with all expenses paid.

$5,000 PAID IN DILL LAW SUIT

Alienation Action Against Former U. S. Senator Ended In Knox County Court.

MT. VERNON—(AP)—A common pleas court journal entry today showed dismissal of Margie Heaton Dill's alienation suit against former U. S. Sen. C. C. Dill with payment in full of a $5,000 judgment by Mrs. Grace Dill, mother-in-law of the plaintiff.

Mrs. Grace Dill lost an appeal before the district appeals court Nov. 22, 1937. Her brother-in-law, the former Washington senator, had won a new trial, which never was set.

The dismissal by common pleas Judge Charles D. Hayden of Knox county was dated Jan. 17 but was not disclosed until today.

Margie Heaton Dill, a Mt. Vernon stenographer, was married May 29, 1934, to Wendell Dill, son of Mrs. Grace Dill, the day after their graduation from Fredericktown, O., high school.

On May 21, 1936, she obtained the $5,000 judgment after having sued Mrs. Dill and the former senator for $25,000, charging that they arranged an illegal operation for her and sought to estrange her from Wendell.

Thirteen days ago she filed suit for divorce from Wendell on grounds of wilful absence. He now is employed by U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey in Washington, D. C.

Ever think of "TRADING UP" to a BETTER USED CAR?

Every man with an old car knows that he's in for trouble and repair bills. Tires begin to give out. Battery goes dead on a cold morning. Maybe brakes have to be relined. And there's always danger of bigger expense for engine repairs.

It isn't worth the trouble to hold onto that old car, when there's a flood of year old cars being traded in on new Buicks. Somebody else has taken the first-year depreciation on these cars, so we can offer them at prices like these:

35 Graham Sedan New paint, good tires $395	35 Ford Sedan Dlx. New tires. Radio $365
35 Plymouth Sedan Excellent Condition $395	35-58 Buick Coupe New paint, Good tires. Radio. $465

POLAR FINDINGS OF BYRD HELPER FILL 10 BOOKS

Antarctic Phenomena Related By Senior Scientist On 'Little America' Trip.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Dr. Thomas C. Poulter rubbed his chin with a massive hand and squinted his eyes with a far-away look. Then he shook his head. "I'd like to go back there—yes," he said, "for a week-end visit only."

"Back there" was to "Little America," Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's ice-bound home base within the Antarctic circle where temperatures dropped to 60 and 70 below and the atmosphere was so clear you could see a candle flame for nine miles.

Poulter was senior scientist and second in command of the second Byrd Antarctic expedition —and for his work within "the circle" he was voted a congressional medal for "scientific accomplishment unequaled in polar exploration."

Poulter, who stands 6 feet tall and weighs 200 pounds, today is director of the research foundation of Armour Institute of Technology.

"That job keeps me busy," he said. "I wouldn't have time for more than a week-end trip to Little America even if I wanted it."

Third Trip Doubted.

He said he thought Admiral Byrd was interested in returning for a third explorative trip, "but I don't think his health would stand another one-man observation post experience again."

Along with his other duties Poulter still is at work compiling scientific data taken at the Antarctic base. There are 22 separate studies in all, covering aurora and meteor observations, magnetic soundings, ice conditions and geophysics.

Poulter said it was while advancing over jagged ice toward Byrd's lonely one-man observation post far from the home base that he discovered the crystal clear atmospheric conditions in the Antarctic.

"Our markers from the former trip were covered with ice and snow, so we planted oiled wicks to burn at one mile intervals. The flames were protected by pieces of glass from the wind. After we progressed nine miles we sighted back from one side of the trail and saw eight tiny spots of light — the burning wicks.

"Not only that," he added, "but you could see with binoculars 35 meteors a minute. Even more meteors fall in Chicago—but they cannot be seen."

This data will be released soon in a series of 10 volumes of 300 pages each. The first is almost ready for printing.

ISSUES APPEAL FOR CLOTHING

Volunteers of America Calls for Aid for Needy Families.

Capt. William Westcott of the Volunteers of America today issued an appeal to Mansfielders having discarded clothing suitable for needy persons to notify his organization.

"We have been swamped with requests for winter clothing during the past two days of cold weather," Capt. Westcott said, "and have been unable to supply the needs. If any Mansfielders can give us clothing, we will call for it, and see that it goes to needy families."

The Volunteers of America headquarters is at 278 North Main street and the telephone is Canal 4573.

MIND TRAINING URGED TO AID SPASTIC CHILD

Mental Treatment Held to Be Just as Important as Body Exercise.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Spastic paralysis, muscular disorder which afflicts children, can be cured if given proper treatment at an early age, in the opinion of Dr. Earl Carlson, noted specialist in spastic disorders and member of the Neuroligical Institute of Columbia university. Mental exercise in treatment of this paralysis, he said, was as important as physical exercise.

Dr. Carlson, in an address here, said:

"A sound mind within a crippled body also will become crippled unless adequate channels for expression and recreation are provided."

He explained that he had suffered from the disorder for more than a year during his own childhood. Dr. Carlson's physical coordination was impaired at birth by a brain hemorrhage. He overcame the paralysis, educated himself and now devotes his life to the motor disorders of children.

"In the gradual cure of the spastic sufferer the exercise of the body and mind is important," he said.

Dr. Carlson pointed out that a spastic child, unable to control his muscular movements, is sometimes considered mentally defective.

"In reality," he said, "he may be mentally bright."

"Often the children are laboring under purely motor handicaps," he continued, "with little or no mental disturbance, and have a possibility of extremely good recovery if given proper treatment at an early age."

Dr. Carlson proposed establishment of schools which, in addition to teaching these children suffering from paralysis, muscular co-ordination, would also enable them to gratify their desire for personal worth by individual development.

The answer to the present problem of hundreds of spastic children in the United States, he believes, rests in proper use of physical and mental training so that the development of the child will be well rounded.

France formally recognized the upper Nile valley as a sphere of British influence in 1899.

Huge Natural-Ice House Straddles Great Divide

(By The AP Feature Service)

ICE CITY, Wyo.—This suburb of Laramie, railroad center, is almost atop the continental divide. Its raw materials are pure water and freezing temperatures. Its only product is ice.

Next summer the ice harvested from a 43-acre lake this winter will be crushed and blown into thousands of refrigerator cars passing through on a transcontinental railroad—90,000 cars were iced in 1936.

The ice house is almost a fifth of a mile long—"the nation's biggest natural-ice warehouse," says Sven I. Lindquist, general manager of the plant. In it, 80,000 tons are stored. Breakage and melting reduce the total one-fifth.

University of Wyoming students usually gather the harvest. Here's how it's done:

1—After top ice has been shaved off, a "go-devil" cuts the ice into 22-inch squares, joined temporarily by an uncut, 4-inch bottom section.

2—Then sheets of scored ice are pried from the main floe and, manned by crew members, go floating down the channel. The ice will run from 14 to 17 inches thick.

3—At the icehouse other workers break up the sheets, which are carried along moving ramps into the icehouse and then . . .

4—Shot down a long slide into the ice room where other workers, wielding long hooks, stow them away until summer.

BLIND MAN'S COUNTY CLERK

Elected Over Opponent Who Has But One Arm.

WHITESBURG, Ky.—(AP)—A blind man, Cossie Quillen of Neon, Ky., has assumed his duties as clerk of Letcher county.

Mrs. Quillen, who assisted him in his campaign, has qualified as his assistant.

Quillen, a Republican, was elected in November over Cre Caudill, Democrat, who has but one arm.

The blind clerk, scoutmaster at Neon, lost his sight when he was fired on by an assailant two years ago while leading a party of Boy Scouts on a camping trip in the mountains.

Jesus Forgives Sin

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 30 is Mark 2:1-12, the Golden Text being Mark 2:5, "Son, thy sins are forgiven.")

"A friend in need is a friend indeed." The paralytic of our lesson had four friends who were friends indeed. The measure of their friendship was not the difficulties in the way but the extent of their friend's need and his own helpfulness to meet that need.

Jesus and the Crowds.

Jesus had no difficulty in drawing a crowd. His difficulty was rather in avoiding the crowds that better teaching might be done. But even when he withdrew from the cities and "was without in desert places: they came to him from every quarter. And when he entered again into Capernaum after some days it was noised that he was at home. And many were gathered together, so that there was no longer room for them, no, not even about the door: and he spake the word unto them." So the teaching of the Word of God was the magnet that drew the crowds to our Savior. Repeatedly "they pressed upon him to hear the Word of God." Of course there was much of idle curiosity, and Jesus never encouraged this. But there was also much genuine heart hunger and Jesus never disappointed this. He fed the people upon the things of God for which their souls hungered and "the common people heard him gladly." If our churches and Sunday schools are not drawing the people it is not that human nature has changed but rather that we have changed from the method of Jesus to methods different from his.

"Where there is a will there is a way," even when it is the will to help someone else rather than ourselves. The friends who brought the paralytic to Jesus were undaunted when they could not gain admittance to the house of Simon where Jesus was teaching the crowds that packed the house to the doors and overflowed into the yard. They climbed the steps to the flat roof and removed the matting or other light roofing material and lowered their helpless friend, mat and all, into the presence of Jesus where room was quickly made for those whose earnestness and determination challenged the attention of all. Far from disrupting or even interrupting the sermon, the interruption became the sermon's clearest illustration. "Jesus seeing their faith sayeth unto the sick of the palsy, Son, be of good cheer, thy sins are forgiven."

A Strange Diagnosis.

That was a surprising diagnosis of this man's need! Who said anything about sins or forgiveness? Is that why these men have gone to all their trouble in tearing up the roof and lowering their friend? Why not say, "Son, be of good cheer, thy paralysis is cured?" Because the Good Physician aimed not at accidental symptoms but at fundamental causes. Man's deepest-seated need is spiritual rather than physical. Sin is more depressing than sickness and more deadly. Christ's authority to minister in this realm of divine prerogatives was questioned by those who took him for a man only instead of the God-man, and they charged him with blasphemy. But he vindicated his authority to "restore my soul" by exercising demonstrable power to heal the body, giving as his reason, "That ye may know that the Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins." It was an amazing claim, amazingly demonstrated as the man took up his bed and walked forth before them all. Christ Jesus is a Savior who "cleanseth us from all sin." "He restoreth my soul."

FARM PROFITS GROW THROUGH CHEMISTS' AID

Federal Bureau Perfects New Processes For Using Agriculture's Wastes.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Department of Agriculture chemists have added millions of dollars to farm income through discovery of new and wider industrial uses for farm products.

Some of the most important recent discoveries reported by the department were production of starch from sweet potatoes, extraction of tannin from hemlock bark, conversion of egg-white foam into dried egg-white, and new fertilizer mixtures.

The department, through its bureau of chemistry and soils, also is making extensive experiments into causes and treatment of hay fever, according to Henry G. Knight, chief of the bureau.

Elusive Substance.

A study of 300 patients at a Wasington hospital, the bureau said, failed to detect the presence of allergen, a substance in the protein of certain foods thought to be the cause of hay fever, hives and asthma, in the milk of cows fed ragweed tops

Last year more than 1,000,000 pounds of sweet potato starch were produced commercially by a method developed by the bureau. Knight said that by using surplus and culls of a number of starch-bearing crops such as white and sweet potatoes, that a substantial portion of the 300,000,000 pounds of imported starch could be made from domestic products.

A study of storage problems resulted in discovery of a method by which sweet potatoes can be de-hydrated quickly at low cost. The dried product thus can be stored indefinitely without loss of starch, enabling sweet potato factories to operate during the entire year instead of a few months during the harvesting season.

The bureau last year discovered new and improved methods of making sorgo and sugarcane syrups. A malt process prevents slow boiling, scorching, jellying and "clabboring" of sorgo syrup. A method for making an improved sugar cane syrup that does not "go to sugar" also was developed by the bureau.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1938.

A recession is bad for the country, but an obsession can also do a lot of harm.

Americanism: Arguing the benefits of "self-government" and then asking the government for a handout.

As Edgar Guest said in one of his poems, "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make a home"—and it also takes a heap o' working' to clear the walks o' snow.

Investigation Must Be Thorough.

REVELATIONS already made by the state senate's investigating committee argue strongly for continued functioning of that committee until completion of its work.

Decision of the legislature to postpone adjournment until February 28, instead of accepting the February 10 date insisted upon by Governor Davey, will give the senate committee at least two additional weeks in which to probe further into some of the questionable practices of attaches of several state departments.

Without further ado, the house should now also provide a sufficient additional appropriation to meet the reasonable costs of completing the investigation.

Whatever the real motive of Governor Davey may be in wishing to block this investigation, a definite disservice is being rendered his party and the people of Ohio by his recalcitrant attitude toward the effort being made to discover whether or not there is justification for widespread suspicion of graft and corruption in handling Ohio's public business.

There has been testimony before the investigating committee, for instance, that taxpayers have been gypped out of what may total hundreds of thousands of dollars through political favoritism and the "influence" of certain persons whose "commissions" reimbursed them for liberal campaign contributions.

The people of Ohio have a right to expect not only absolute honesty, but also a reasonable degree of intelligence in the conduct of public business and the expenditure of public money.

The present senate investigation, if carried to completion in a fair and fearless manner, will serve either to restore public confidence or to disclose conditions that should be immediately corrected by responsible officials.

Another Birthday Ball.

MANSFIELD will again join, tomorrow night, in contributing to the fund needed to carry on the nation-wide battle against infantile paralysis.

For the fifth successive year, the birthday anniversary of Franklin D. Roosevelt (Jan. 30) has been made the occasion for community observance in many cities as a part of the plan for financing research work and treatment of infantile paralysis victims.

During this time the President's Birthday Ball has been made an important feature of the fund-raising effort, with a part of the money going to the Warm Springs, Ga., institution for treatment of infantile paralysis patients and a part retained for community use.

This year a new plan is to be followed, with all of the money going to establishing a new national foundation intended to unify the fight against infantile paralysis and to make possible an even more intensive study of the disease and its causes. It will also be the purpose of this national foundation to give first aid in epidemics and to have essential equipment for treatment available wherever and whenever needed.

This is a worthy cause and support by attendance at the Birthday Ball, or by direct contribution, is a commendable humanitarian act.

France's Idle Factories.

THE political problem in France is really not political at all, but economic. It is a problem of production, as Camille Chautemps has clearly seen and stated.

It may be all right to restrict labor to 40 hours a week, as France has done, but all wrong to restrict the factories themselves to 40 hours. Chautemps sees the folly of keeping factories idle 128 hours for every 40 hours of operation. They should be kept going, of course, with more shifts of workmen, increasing production and lowering prices, thus enabling everybody to have more goods.

The shaky French currency is merely a symbol. All the talk about "saving the franc" is beside the point. With more work and production, the franc would take care of itself.

It is a good example of political freedom and private capitalism stepping on their own feet. It is folly for the French people, or any people, to imagine that they can make themselves prosperous by not working.

Jefferson and Monticello.

DECISION of the treasury department to issue a new design of the nickel coin, commemorative of Thomas Jefferson and Monticello, may have the effect of at least temporarily directing attention of many people to the life story of the third president and his famous home.

Jefferson is fittingly given place in the small group of great Americans who have retained a permanent place in the history of this country.

A visit to Monticello, Jefferson's home, near Charlottesville, Va., gives opportunity for better understanding of his amazing versatility, and a study of his life work furnishes convincing proof of his keen insight into national affairs.

The twenty-five years during which users of nickels will have Jefferson and Monticello directed to their attention may even serve to restore the political party he founded to the sound principles he espoused.

Word comes that a New York office employe is attracting notice by starting to work as soon as he sits down at his desk—investigation discloses, however, that it isn't a government job.

Hundreds of requests have been received to witness an execution scheduled for March 10 at the Ohio penitentiary—if you have been wondering what's wrong with some people.

Some folks think autos are ruining the younger generation, while others believe it's the reverse.

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU!"

Sins of Distant Past Still Beset Business

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Big business in the United States undoubtedly is a vast deal decenter today than it used to be.

Time was, up to a couple of generations ago, when financial and industrial buccaneering was pretty general in our country. We were young then—and did not realize how serious a national situation our economic manipulators were running us into. If some few folk reached the conclusion that conditions were becoming intolerable right where they lived, they did not stop to fight it out in that locality; they went west, pre-empted homesteads and founded new communities, more to their own liking. Gradually civilized eastern greed followed them up and largely gobbled them, but it was a slowish process; the pioneers were unaware that it was proceeding — until it already was fairly well effected.

Theodore Roosevelt was the first statesman to call attention to the fact that our frontier was GONE; that there no longer was any place for individual enerprise to find refuge.

"DIRTY WORK" DONE.

By that time big business had done its basic "dirty work."

It had its stocks fundamentally watered, its valuations inflated to the bursting point.

Railroads especially were overcapitalized, but so was big business generally.

Corporations were trying to make money at two or three times the rate that they ever had had cash invested in them.

WORSE NOW?

I can remember the crash of 1893—though I was too young to understand it at all fully.

It was terrible, but it had one redeeming feature.

I know a mid-western banker (now very old), who recalls that depression.

"How," I asked him, soon after the 1929 collapse, "does this compare with the '93 bust-up?"

"Well," he said, "I think that the average man was flatter broke in '93 than he is at present.

"But he was just broke. He wasn't in debt. When we began to feel recovery, he began to RECOVER. Now, when we begin trying to recover, he has our enormous load of national obligations (of taxation) to reckon with."

OVERCAPITALIZATION.

Yes, and of private overcapitalization?

The big corporations resent this suggestion. They say they are NOT overcapitalized.

The railroads assert that all the water was squeezed out of their obligations in '93, when they went into bankruptcy wholesale. Other corporations, of more recent date, deny that they ever WERE overcapitalized.

I doubt it.

TOO MANY SINS?

I do not question that big business WISHES it could get back to earth.

But it has the sins of its grandfathers and great-grandfathers visited upon it. And holders of its securities have big business' progenitors visited on them also.

Back in the 1880's Henry Georgeites were squalling that this was just what would happen to us if we did not mend our ways. A couple of Henry Georgeites still linger in political life in Washington — Representatives Robert Crosser of Ohio and Eckert of Pennsylvania.

I should like to hear them holler.

It would not do any immediate good but it would be interesting.

A DIFFICULT TASK.

As to President Roosevelt's case?

He is trying to correct conditions whose origin antedate his birth.

Naturally it is difficult.

Looking Back

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Yes, You Can Change Your Luck!

A WOMAN writes: "I'm sending a compliment and a complaint. Your column does something to me. It actually transforms me—at the time of reading. I put it down feeling I could do anything—overcome any obstacle, accomplish any miracle. But presently, when the spell wears off, I'm as discouraged as ever . . . back in the same old slump . . . for I don't know how to put what you preach into practice.

"Perhaps it isn't your fault—just my own dumbness. But couldn't you give us some plain, practical direction as well as your fine philosophy?

"About luck, for example—"

YOU'RE talking to a fellow sufferer, lady. It's seldom I know how to practice what I preach, myself. But wouldn't it be grand if we could! However, I've stumbled on an honest-to-goodness tip about this luck business, guaranteed to work if you'll do your part. Nothing mystic about . . . no high-hat hocus-pocus.

IF YOU WANT TO CHANGE YOUR LUCK—

CHANGE THE THING THAT MAKES YOUR LUCK.

MEANING WHAT?

YOUR STATE OF MIND!

Luck isn't a vague sort of psychic seizure that lands on you—or doesn't. Luck is something you make within yourself . . . a force you set in motion by your own thoughts and feelings . . . THE RESULT OF YOUR OWN ATTITUDE TOWARD LIFE.

Here we all are, facing the same old world . . . the same old mass of circumstances. If one thing doesn't wham us, another will. BUT WE CAN CONTROL OUR ATTITUDE TOWARD THOSE WHAMMINGS. We can CHOOSE whether we'll be cheerful and confident or woeful and wobbling.

And by that choice we establish our reputation with other human beings . . . determine their attitude toward us . . . build our own luck, good or bad.

Sounds reasonable so far, doesn't it? But suppose you've a record run of misfortune and everything seems set against you. HOW CAN YOU CHANGE YOUR LUCK? CAN IT BE DONE?

Yes, it can. And again I say, it's as simple as picking Dad's shirt off the bathroom floor. Listen—here's how!

IF YOU'RE UP AGAINST SOMETHING YOU CAN'T DO, DROP THAT THING AND TACKLE SOMETHING YOU CAN DO.

The "something you can't do" may be very big and complicated—and the "something you can do" may be very small—something as trivial as cleaning out a bureau drawer, reading a detective story, weeding a garden. BUT THAT SEEMINGLY SIMPLE ACT WILL "CHANGE YOUR LUCK" AS SURE AS GOD MADE LITTLE APPLES. Why and how? BECAUSE IT CHANGES YOUR OWN STATE OF MIND.

In the first place, when you're tackling something you can't do, you're discouraged and disgusted—your whole nature has gone into reverse, under its sense of failure. You're building and attracting evil fortune.

Then suddenly you change to something you can do—something you like to do. Instantly your mood changes. You become proud and pleased and sure of yourself. Your mind regains its grip . . . the very chemistry of your body changes . . . you're quickened, warmed. The problem which looked insurmountable before, seems lighter now. Why on earth were you so sunk? Cry-baby! You grin . . . laugh out loud . . . YOUR LUCK HAS CHANGED.

Does it work? IT DOES! I can't guarantee that this simple procedure will change you from a pauper to a prince in 20 seconds . . . but I do know that it will shift anyone's attitude, improve anyone's fortune, change anyone's luck for the better—and set one's whole life going on a new and rising trail. TRY IT NOW!

(Copyright, 1938.)

As Others See It

Has An Advantage.

In becoming an executive in the liquor trade, Gene Tunney observes a hallowed tradition, and should do even better financially than John L. Sullivan, who opened his saloon before there were cash registers.—Detroit News.

The Single Exception.

Our citizens today, says a noted American, "need training in self-help, self-reliance and self-responsibility.' And that, unhappily is what they are getting everything else but.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

When a man lacks nerve he is likely to think he is discreet.

Nearly every great achievement of humanity was evolved from a crank's theory.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

U. S. Problems Are World-Wide.

PEOPLE think of conditions in the United States as peculiar to this country. . . . They should read the financial reviews and political observations of other countries. . . . France is having a much greater battle between "economic royalists" and "New Dealers" than has occurred in the United States. . . . In Germany business is complaining of heavy exactions—and workers dare say nothing (unions having been completely annihilated.) . . . In Japan, the majority of workers receive merely a pittance of a wage . . . In England, despite "prosperity" from the largest armaments' expenditures ever made by any country in the world's history, prices have begun to "ease" . . . In fact, prices are easing virtually everywhere in the world . . . In Rumania, prices are in a rout. The Jews are blamed, and an anti-Semitic dictatorship is established . . . Perhaps another country will blame the sunspots, another the Arabs, another the "overproduction" of wheat (actually blamed in one country) . . . But nobody cares, or dares, to go to the source . . .

And what is the source? Maldistribution, malproduction, nationalistic obstacles to trade and exchange; unnatural monopolies; inflation instead of communal sharing. The entire world is a community, an extremely sensitive community, and paralysis of the smallest nerve may cripple the whole.

There isn't much difference of opinion over the source, but there is a furious conflict over the cure.

HEADLINE NOTES

Here are some headlines from the Alexander Hamilton Institute, which we often quote on economic matters:

"Declining rents now depressing building. Building costs still excessive despite some reduction."

"Federal deficit less than half that of last year. Current deficit due chiefly to payments into trust funds. Government consequently has contributed little this year to inflation."

"Department store sales up in 1937 for fourth consecutive year. Prospect is for downward trend in 1938. Annual sales in 1938, however, not likely to be more than 8 per cent lower than in 1937."

U. S. AND PHILIPPINES

Here is an extremely important comment in the Foreign Policy association's bulletin, made by its Washington observer, William T. Stone:

"On Jan. 12 the president announced that economic ties with the Philippines may be extended to 1960. This statement, made in an offhand answer to a question put to Mr. Roosevelt at his press conference, was quickly and correctly reported as a veiled warning to Japan that the United States does not intend to pull up stakes in the Pacific or to 'abandon' the Philippines, even if the islands adhere to the present plan for complete independence in 1946.

"In this case the president was speaking deliberately for publication, but apparently without the knowledge of his advisers on Philippine affairs. The latter were surprised and a little nettled, as the plan is still tentative, and many points remain to be worked out with the Philippine delegation, which is due in Washington in February. The effect, however, was precisely what the president wanted."

A LETTER

W. H. Edwards of Spencer, Ind., criticizes a statement of an economic institute, which we published, fearing "a long down trend."

Says Mr. Edwards:

"None of us is capable of forecasting the present recession's probable end. Changing trends in government and finance have rendered past signposts useless.

"Public education is at last producing a people who will not allow financial 'grand dukes' to do all the thinking and planning, as has been the case in too many past years. Modern education has taught a vast mass of the people that money is not something to be eaten or worn, but is only of a commodity value when it is used as an exchange of goods and services.

"Throughout most of the history of the United States, the tycoons of finance and power have held their power over people and government by the doctrine that money is sacred, to be held by a limited number of 'best people'...

"If and when the power over money is returned to its constitutional function, promoting the 'general welfare' by giving widespread employment to all willing workers, then the permanent wealth of the nation will be enhanced.

"That money will be spent with merchants all over the land, will go from the merchants to the producers of agriculture and manufactured products, where it will create employment for more people. That will enable the 'one-third of people who are ill fed, ill housed and ill clothed' to have more nourishing food, more and better clothes to wear and, we hope, modern homes in which to live instead of the shacks now occupied by many hard-working, industrious families, especially in rural areas."

Health Advice

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

Ailing Heart Menace Is Neglect.

IT IS upsetting for one to be told he has heart disease. It has always been considered a serious ailment. Statistics continue to point to it as the first and chief cause of death.

Although this statement is accurate it requires an explanation, because heart disease should not be feared as it is.

As a matter of fact, most persons who become aware of having some form of heart disease may escape the dreaded consequences. By taking the necessary precautions, they often outlive those who are believed to be free from this and other serious ailments. This is true, for one reason, because an individual who regards himself as a perfect physical specimen too often subjects his body needlessly and foolishly to many dangers, strain and health hazard.

In the majority of cases, heart disease is serious only if neglected. The sufferer from this complaint should place himself in the hands of a competent physician. The doctor will advise as to diet, medication and a number of precautions necessary for the relief of discomfort and the removal of danger.

What to Avoid.

The things to be avoided by one who has heart disease, as well as all the rest of us, are negligence in diet, overwork, emotional strain, fear, overweight and failure to attend to acute infections. When these factors are given attention and a sane and sensible life is led, there is little to fear.

Unfortunately for society, very few live quietly and moderately. They have a daily routine of work and play which seems to be the rule of our modern civilization. The constant "rush" ultimately damages the heart and leads to unnecessary trouble.

The danger of heart disease is especially great when it has been neglected from early childhood. The victim of a serious form of heart disease may first consult with a doctor years after the onset of the disorder.

If medical attention is obtained at an early date, a great deal of unnecessary suffering and anxiety is sure to be avoided.

Do not confuse minor heart disorders of a functional nature with severe forms of heart disease. Your doctor will explain the difference.

We Must Save Ourselves.

Don't try to save me from myself. It'll do you no good to try. It won't work. You'll get no credit for it, either, I'll not thank you, and you take my word for that.

If I put too much salt on my food. If I eat too much meat and not enough vegetables. If my clothes don't fit. If I'm always needing a haircut.

If I have a friend of whom you don't approve. If some of my habits don't suit you. If I read the wrong books and laugh at the wrong jokes. If I like puns and don't like grand opera.

If my tie is the wrong color. If my grammar is faulty and I don't know when to say "shall" and when to say "will." If I'm intolerant when I should be tolerant and easy when I should be tough.

If I prefer bridge to poker. If I like watching football instead of playing tennis. If I say the wrong things. If I dream and don't do. If I procrastinate and if I fuss.

If in all these ways I'm wrong, you can do nothing about it. You can't change me. You can argue, you can abuse, you can remind and deplore and say, "I told you so." But you'll be wasting your time and your energy and your noble intentions.

Because no matter how hard you try you can't Save Me From Myself. I'm like you. I'm stubborn. I can't learn except by stubbing my toe and falling on my face.

I get no experience out of speeches or books, I get it out of life. And one lesson from life isn't enough, either. I must learn again and again, till I'm bruised and scarred and my wounds are the constant reminders of the mistakes I have made.

That's me and I think it's you, too. We outgrow our own silliness, we grow into a personal wisdom—or we don't. But nobody else can do for us what we should do for ourselves. Nobody can rescue us with second-hand learning. There are no gifts, no bargains, in life.

We must Do Our Own Stuff and we shouldn't complain, because that's the law of life. . . . We should be thankful that this is so.

Timely Editorial

Too Much Tolerance.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick said something recently which has needed saying for a long time. The gist of his remarks constituted a condemnation of too much tolerance. The steady practice of being ready at all times to see the other man's side of the question can be overdone, and if it is, it can become "in the realm of moral conduct, a soft mush of ethical concession," he says.

There is no reason for being tolerant of evil. Being tolerant of a Mussolini, a Stalin, or a Hitler to the point of not resisting their ideas of government is to compromise with a dangerous evil. We cannot be tolerant of falsehood, nor can we be tolerant of inaccuracy. When we are we ourselves become, not a blessing nor an adornment to kindliness or generosity, but a menace to our own and our fellowmen's welfare.

A little iron in the soul and an intelligent discernment of what to be tolerant and of what not to be tolerant make for more orderly, more progressive and more satisfactory living.—Columbus Dispatch.

Gus Edson, who now draws the "Gumps," is double-jointed and twists into all sorts of positions at the drawing board. Frank Willard, the "Moon Mullins" man, no matter how hot the weather, wears a sweater and leather jacket. H. T. Webster spends six months a year in Florida fishing.

Jimmy Swinnerton spends most of his time with Navajo Indians painting the desert. Clare "Dwig" Dwiggins hates to comb his hair. Gene Ahern always just beats the deadline with his stuff while Bob Brinkerhoff once got enough Mary Mixup strips ahead to circle the globe.

Harry O'Neill, who draws "Broncho Bill" has never been west of the Mississippi and Al Capp, who draws hill-billy stuff, has never been in the Southern mountains. George Herriman, "Krazy Cat" artist, once told his employers they paid him too much and to cut his salary. They did!

The busiest mid-town telephone switchboard is at Joe Leblang's cut rate ticket agency just before curtain time. Next to the Major Bowes amateur vote during his broadcasts, the calls are swiftest at Leblang's, one of the few agencies to ride out the theater slump. Third on the list of busy exchanges in the Times Square area is the Astor at the cocktail hour. Further east the most popular meeting places are the Waldorf and Savoy-Plaza bars.

Conde Nast is the most expert of the town's gadabouts. Although the hard working head of a vast publishing business, he finds time to be everywhere and see everything. And with all appears to be the youngest gentlemen for his years hereabouts. One of the few original New Yorkers, he is 63 and has a daughter 37 and one 7. There is scarcely a night in the year he is not in dinner jacket or white tie at some affair in a private home or restaurant or at the opera or play. Once or twice a year he goes abroad and in London and Paris, where he is equally well known, keeps up the same social rigamarole. And always looks as fresh as the proverbial daisy.

Most Manhattan oldsters who try to maintain the pace after middle years have the unhealthy shine of a cicatrix. They dodder about, trying to look all merry and bright, and suggesting George Arliss in one of his elderly roles. At first nights, some are often gently snoring at the drop of the first curtain. Living symbols of the amusing line in Ivor Novello's London hit: Chin up, white tie for dinner and carry on!

Sinclair Lewis and his wife, Dorothy Thompson, are neck and neck in lecture tour popularity. Each is in high demand, having far more invitations than they can fill. John Mason Brown, the dramatic critic, is another of the popular platform talkers. Lecture bureau pay runs from $100 to $800 an appearance, plus expenses. Most established lecturers enjoy the actual work but soon become fed up with the social demands that have become almost an inevitable part of the tour — receptions, teas, luncheons, dinners and talking to bores.

Incidentally, the mid-Victorian quartet is again attaining favor, not only on the radio, in vaudeville and movies but as a part of the lecture olio. Today those favorite old standbys The Avon Comedy Four, That Quartette and other fixtures in vaudeville could get solid booking over the lecture trails. And the songs the new generation as well as the old enjoy hearing most are the ancient familiars, "By the Old Mill Stream," "Sweet Adeline," and such. The quartet is a study in wish fulfillment. Almost every man has a secret desire to blend his voice in harmony, even though he may not be able to sing a note. One of my unfilled ambitions was quartetting. I always wanted to be the Morton Downey tenor on the left who stepped forth and twisted his cap into a ball trying to reach a high note.

COUNTY'S TAX BILL FOR YEAR MILLION, HALF

Auditor Says $1,100,000 Due For Current Assessments, $365,000 Delinquent.

Richland county property owners began the year owing the county $1,513,176 in real estate and special assessment levies, with $573,916 of that amount due in current taxes when the books open Tuesday, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today.

The total charge includes $1,147,834 in current taxes payable in 1938 and $365,341 in delinquent levies carried over from last year's books.

Delinquencies during 1937 were reduced by $86,228, showing the results of a campaign to collect back taxes which was conducted by Kolb and Atty. Marshall C. Moore, special assistant prosecutor in charge of collections.

A number of properties were sold at sheriff's auction during the year, while hundreds of property holders owing back taxes made deposits on their debts and arranged to pay in installments.

$35,000 Paid Already.

Despite the business recession of recent weeks, approximately $35,000 has already been collected in current and delinquent taxes on the first half charge, Kolb said. The tax books, which open Feb. 1, will remain open for payment without penalty until March 20.

The 1938 charge, slightly under the total amount of taxes due last year, includes $1,332,342 in current and delinquent real estate levies and $180,834 in special assessments. The reduction in the charge is due, Kolb said, to the collection in old taxes.

Mansfield with the greatest tax valuation, owes $862,042, or more than half the total charge. Shelby's debt amounts to $118,314, and the townships and villages owe $532,819.

Mansfield also heads the list in total delinquent taxes and penalties due, with $190,406 as against $148,342 for the villages and townships and $26,593 for Shelby.

New Brunswick Again Attacks Old Debt Law

FREDERICTON, N. B.—(U.P.)—Motivated by Attorney General J. B. McNair, plans are underway to renovate New Brunswick's antiquated debt law, long ridiculed by lawyers and social workers as the one on which creditors so hounded Dicken's immortal Micawber in "David Copperfield."

Amendments to the act, said to be the only one in existence in the civilized world, were stymied to permit legislative officials to attend the coronation last spring.

Agitation against the statute has been underway for the past 20 years, sponsored by the New Brunswick Barristers association.

The clause under attack permits the creditor not only to obtain an execution against the goods of the debtor, but to obtain an execution against his body also. In St John, the largest city in the province, an average of six persons are jailed monthly for debts.

SEEKS BILLION FOR U. S. NAVY, ARMY DEFENSES

Roosevelt Tells Congress That Nation Needs Additional Warships, Cruisers.

therization bill, without accompanying appropriations, while the president's message asks for immediate appropriation to start two additional capital ships. The third could be laid down next year or any subsequent year when appropriations for start of construction are authorized by congress.

Two Under Construction.

The two new battleships asked by the president would put a total of six battleships on the American construction ways in the near future. Two now are under construction, at the New York and Philadelphia navy yards. Two more are provided for in the 1938-39 regular navy appropriation bill, and the president would have congress appropriate for two more, immediately.

The president's national defense message, voicing his alarm over the international situation, coincided with a revelation by the state department that American relations with Japan are becoming daily more strained as a result of repeated and continuing outrages against the American flag, American citizens and American property in China at the hands of Japanese regular troops.

The state department made public the text of a sharp protest to the Japanese foreign office by Ambassador Joseph C. Grew of Tokyo, over these continuing incidents. In it Grew openly challenged the sincerity of the Japanese guarantees of future protection to American nations, their rights and property in China, made in Japan's note of Dec. 24, which was the basis for the settlement of the Panay incident.

Mr. Roosevelt's 7-point defense program provided:

1. Authorization of $8,800,000 army anti-aircraft additions, with $6,800,000 to be spent in the next fiscal year.

2. $450,000 to be appropriated for increasing the army enlisted reserve in the next fiscal year.

3. Authorization for $6,080,000 for army dies and material equipment of which $5,000,000 would be spent in fiscal year 1939.

4. Spending of $2,000,000 to increase army munitions reserves.

5. Authorization for a flat 20 per cent increase in naval strength —a program estimated by congressional leaders to involve an ultimate total cost of $800,000,000.

6. Authorization and appropriation for start of work in fiscal 1939 on two additional capital ships and two additional cruisers. Mr. Roosevelt did not estimate the 1939 cost of this program but said it would be "very small."

7. Authorization and appropriation of $15,000,000 for experimental naval vessels in the 1939 fiscal year.

20 Millions Greater.

The new defense program would add $20,800,000 to the nation's 1939 military and naval costs, plus whatever might be spent in launching the proposed new dreadnaughts and cruisers.

"Tension throughout the world is high," declared Mr. Roosevelt, in his message to congress. "Armies are fighting in the Far East and in Europe; thousands of civilians are being driven from their homes and bombed from the air.

"As commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States it is my constitutional duty to report to the congress that our national defense is, in the light of the increasing armaments of other nations, inadequate for purposes of national security and requires increase for that reason."

The president's message called for somewhat less in additional arms expenditures than had been anticipated, although the long-term cost of the program as submitted by him was estimated at more than a billion dollars.

Navy Expansion Bill Sent to Congress.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga., of the naval affairs committee, introduced a bill today authorizing a 20 per cent increase in the combat strength of the United States fleet to provide the greatest navy the nation ever had.

In response to President Roosevelt's defense message, Vinson asked congress to authorize an $800,000,000 program calling for 47 new combat ships, including three more dreadnaughts, 22 new auxiliary vessels, 1,000 additional airplanes, 1,200 additional officers and 20,000 more enlisted men.

Enactment of the bill would increase naval program beyond expired treaty limitations to a strength comparable with that of other great powers in their projected building programs.

"The defense, security and peace of this country," said Vinson, "make it absolutely imperative that we have and maintain a navy second to none."

Three new battleships, which with the four new ones ordered constructed or appropriated for in the 1939 naval supply bill, will give the United States 18 "under age" battleships.

Two new aircraft carriers, making a total of eight.

Eight additional cruisers, making a total of 47.

Twenty-five more destroyers, making a total of 147.

Nine more submarines, making a total of 58.

The 22 auxiliary vessels would comprise:

Five destroyer tenders.
Three submarine tenders.
Four large seaplane tenders.
Seven small seaplanes tenders.
Three repair ships.

The authorization for 1,000 additional airplanes would bring the navy's air strength to 2,000 modern planes, comparable to that of any European power.

HOLD FUGITIVE

Cleveland Police Jail O. S. R. Inmate Who Fled Honor Camp.

A Mansfield reformatory inmate who escaped from the Grafton honor camp five months ago was held by Cleveland police who arrested him in a downtown hotel yesterday.

Associated Press dispatches said the fugitive was identified as Stanley Szafranski, 20, who was convicted of robbery in Cuyahoga county in March, 1936, and sentenced to the reformatory to serve from 10 to 25 years. Reformatory officials said they had not been notified of the capture.

15 LOTS GO ON AUCTION BLOCK

Property In Mansfield, Shelby to Be Sold Tomorrow on Court Order.

Fifteen lots in Mansfield and vicinity and Shelby will go on the auction block at sheriff's sale at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the courthouse on common pleas court order in two foreclosure cases and a partition suit.

County Treasurer John E. Kolb is the plaintiff in two of the suits for a total of $5,191 in delinquent taxes and penalties, and the county has a tax lien in the other case for $254 in delinquencies.

The appraised value of 13 of the lots located in Mansfield and suburban districts is $1,165, while judgments against the lots amount to $5,409.

In a suit against Patrick Cunningham for delinquent taxes, the county seeks $36 on two lots in Shelby. The properties have not been appraised.

Claiming half interest in a lot on Raleigh avenue, Mansfield, the Farmers Savings and Trust company obtained a partition order on the lot in a suit against Rena L. Goss and others. The county claims a lien for $254 in taxes on the property. The lot is appraised at $300.

Twelve lots in Roseland, Coolridge Heights and Lincoln Heights will be offered to satisfy a tax judgment for $5,155 obtained by Treasurer Kolb against the Farmers Savings and Trust company, trustee for the properties. The lots have a total appraised valuation of $865.

PROMISES CHECK

Commission to Watch Traffic Over Six Crossings.

It was definitely assured today that the state public utilities commission will conduct a 24-hour traffic check at six grade crossings within the city that are either unguarded or only partially protected.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter received a letter from the commission today in answer to his request for traffic checks to give the commission figures on which to base an order to railroads to furnish full time protection.

The letter said the matter would be assigned for investigation "as soon as posible" and that investigators would be instructed to notify city officials when the check is to be made.

Hunter made the request to the commission Monday after a check at the Bowman street crossing, conducted by the city, showed the need of full time protection. An investigator assigned here during the traffic check said he would recommend that the railroad be ordered to install flashers.

BAR ACTS ON TAXES

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio State Bar association today opened general sessions of its mid-winter meeting after its council of delegates approved a taxation committee report recommending refunds on overpaid taxes.

A Farmer's Diary

January 27.

IN front of a neighbor's barn, this evening, I saw a sleigh. It had a jaunty air, in spite of its antiquity, and I remarked to the farmer, "I'll bet you and your wife went courting in that."

"No," he chuckled. "Neighbor L- - - owned that sleigh. He told our boys they could have it if they'd take his girls riding, sometimes. They've been out in it twice this winter, a'ready."

I observed how the thills were fastened, not squarely in front of the runners, but a foot or more to the right. This was so the horse might walk in the beaten track instead of breaking a new one in the center of the road. I noticed the curved lines of the base, the cushioned seat, the old whip socket.

In fancy I could see the sleigh, new and high and shining, gliding down the moonlit country road behind a spirited young horse. It represented the stylish, youthful gaiety of another age. Tucked snugly under a warm fur robe, on a seat just wide enough for two, with the stars overhead and the tinkle of bells in their ears —what young person would not enjoy it? And with the right girl, the right moon, and such a sleigh—what more romantic setting?

I did not blame our neighbor for wanting his girls to enjoy the thrill of this old time pleasure. After all what is more fun than to ride in a one-horse open sleigh?"

Highlights of Roosevelt's Message On U. S. Defenses

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Pertinent phrases from President Roosevelt's message to congress today on national defense:

We, as a peaceful nation, cannot and will not abandon active search for an agreement among nations to limit armaments and end aggression. But it is clear that until such agreement is reached—and I have not given up hope of it—we are compelled to think of our own national safety.

As commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States it is my constitutional duty to report to the congress that our national defense is, in the light of increasing armaments of other nations, inadequate for the purposes of national security and requires increases for that reason.

Adequate defense means that for the protection not only of our coasts but also of our communities far removed from the coast, we must keep any potential enemy many hundred miles away from our continental limits.

I believe the time has come for the congress to enact legislation aimed at the prevention of profiteering in time of war and the equalization of the burdens of possible war.

It is our clear duty to further every effort toward peace but at the same time to protect our nation. That is the purpose of these recommendations. Such protection is and will be based not on aggression but on defense.

It is an ominous fact that at least one-fourth of the world's population is involved in merciless, devastating conflict in spite of the fact that most people in most countries, including those where conflict rages, wish to live in peace. Armies are fighting in the Far East and in Europe; thousands of civilians are being driven from their homes and bombed from the air.

Unique Band To Play For City's Birthday Dance

One of the most unique musical organizations ever developed in Mansfield will play for the annual President's birthday ball Saturday night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The Westinghouse swing band, organized last October to play for company dealer meetings, was contracted for the dance because of the popular demand for the orchestra's services at Mansfield social functions, members of the committee sponsoring the affair said.

Directed by Robert O. Richards, the band has 12 members, all of whom are employed at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant.

In addition to the orchestra, Saturday night's program will include a floor show directed by Miss Marguerite Speas, Mansfield dancing instructor.

Funds from the sale of tickets to the ball will go to the national foundation for the treatment of infantile paralysis.

SENATORS FAVOR PROBE OF NLRB

But Supporters Can't Agree on Form of Inquiry.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A majority of the members of a senate judiciary subcommittee gave qualified approval today to a proposal to investigate the National Labor Relations Board, but they differed on the form such an inquiry should take.

Senator Burke (D., Neb.), who asked for full hearings on his charges that the board was prejudiced, predicted that the subcommittee would recommend an inquiry.

Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) who spoke against Burke's resolution yesterday, said he did not favor an investigation by the judiciary committee, as Burke had requested.

COUNTY LOSES ONE PRECINCT

Passing of Newville as Village Reduces Number of Polling Places From 91 to 90.

Richland county voters will cast their ballots in 90 precincts at the August election, instead of 91, as the result of the passing of Newville as a village, board of election officials said today.

In Worthington township, where the vote has been cast in A. B. and C precincts, trustees voted to consolidate the C precinct with A, due to the removal of Newville to make way for the Muskingum Conservancy district project.

Newville was in precinct C, while the A precinct takes in Butler village. Forty of the county's 90 precincts are outside Mansfield.

The consolidating of voting places in Worthington township will save trustees in that township more than $50 at each election, according to Walter Underwood, deputy clerk of the election board.

FIRE LOSS DOWN

Absence of Major Fires In '37 Reduces Bucyrus Figure.

Total loss on buildings through fire during the year was $2,038.20 as compared with $44,705.57 in 1936. Values of contents in buildings destroyed was $21,100 as compared with $56,465 in 1936.

The department answered 72 calls during the year with automobiles leading in the causes. Thirteen calls were made on automobile fires with dwellings second with 11 calls. The department also answered three flood calls during the year.

LYNCH BILL TO 'DIE,' SENATE POLL REVEALS

40 Senators Indicate Measure Will Be Shelved Next Week to End Filibuster.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A senate poll showing 40 senators in favor of laying aside the Anti-Lynching bill to make way for other important legislation indicated today that the controversial measure would be shelved next week.

Failure of proponents of the bill to invoke limitation of debate and a statement by Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D. Ky., that the senate must soon decide the issue prepared the way for a motion to displace the measure.

The poll showing 40 prepared to vote now to take up other business was a sudden and big increase in the interests of the opposition. It was regarded as significant that at least ten senators said they were "undecided" as to how they should vote.

No Decision Yet.

"We have not yet decided when a motion to lay aside the bill will be made," Sen. Tom Conally, D. Tex., leader of the filibuster, said. "We are ready to go on talking as long as necessary."

"I have no intention of putting the question up to the senate this week," Barkley said. "I do not know when it will be necessary to decide whether the bill will be laid aside or the debate continued, but probably next week."

It was understood that Barkley would act as soon as the pressure of other business becomes great enough. Although it was arranged to take up the housing conference report on Monday, several appropriation bills are being delayed by the filibuster and the farm bill conference report will be ready soon.

Indications were that as soon as the Farm bill is presented for a final vote, the supporters of the Anti-Lynching bill will be forced to yield despite the announcement of Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D. N. Y., that he would fight on as long as a majority would stand by him.

BACK JEWELL'S STAND ON OHIO PAROLE SYSTEM

Prosecutors Support Protest Against Attorneys Acting In Behalf of Prisoners.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Judge Harrison W. Jewell, Delaware, chairman of the state parole board, was assured today of support from prosecutors attending the state bar association meeting for his opposition to the Franklin county parole grand jury's recommendation that attorneys represent prisoners before the board.

Following his address before them, county prosecutors voted to support his opposition to that part of the grand jury's recent partial report. They agreed with him, however, that when a legal question is involved an inmate should have counsel.

The prosecutors voted approval of his stand that records of the board, judges and law enforcement officers on the prisoners' cases should be kept secret. Judge Jewell made clear he did not intend action taken by the board to be kept secret.

"I stand here just where I stood a few weeks ago; that my primary duty is to protect society," Judge Jewell said. "I will not vary from that while I am on this board."

The jury found him "temperamentally unfitted."

Favors Present Rule.

He told the prosecutors he was opposed to prisoners' representation by counsel unless a clear legal question was involved. He said he could not see that a lawyer's advice was more beneficial than that of any other citizen when the only question presented was "is it safe" to release a prisoner. A board rule now prohibits such representation.

As an example of what he said he considered "a reflection on my profession," he told of an aged woman, unable to speak English, coming to him, opening her purse and through her high school daughter, asking:

"'Judge, does it take $300 to get a parole to get my boy out of prison?'

"The lawyer said it was a fee for legal services, but I can't see what right an attorney has to get a fee to secure a release from the parole board."

Judge Jewell agreed with the grand jury that records of all prisoners should be under supervision of institutional employes and not other convicts.

He noted that injustices have developed through operation of the "indeterminate sentence" law which affects prisoners convicted of the same crime differently.

Likewise, he questioned the advisability of the power given the board to recommit a parolee accused of crime without a jury trial.

Principal speakers today will be Congressman Martin Dies of Texas, discussing congressional action which killed the administration's wage-hour bill during the recent special session; President Walter S. Ruff, Canton, and Arthur T. Vanderbilt, Newark, N. J., president of the American Bar association.

Gets Back Rub as Rheumatism Cure, Finds $55 Gone

A rheumatism cure that cost $55 was reported to police yesterday by Richard Andrew, 98 Lexington avenue.

It all happened this way, according to the story Andrew told investigating officers.

The man was sweeping the snow from the walk in front of his home when a car pulled to the curb and a woman who was accompanied by a man companion opened the car door and asked for directions to a downtown church.

During the few minutes of conversation the woman discovered that Andrew was troubled with rheumatism. She said she could cure it by stroking his back. Andrew agreed.

After the couple disappeared south on Lexington avenue Andrew reached into his trouser pocket to find that his billfold containing $55 was gone. He told police the couple looked like gypsies.

day January thaw, and nearly three days of constant high winds caused the disaster," he said, explaining that the thaw cracked up the thin lake ice and the winds sent it tumbling into the Niagara river, over the falls and down the gorge where it jammed against the bridge.

The "Maids of the Mists," twin steamboats which have carried thousands of tourists to the falls and as famous as the bridge itself, were barely visible downstream where they had been hurled against the walls of the gorge by the ice.

Last night officials of the International Railways company, owner of the bridge, held a conference to decide whether to rebuild. A spokesman said no decision was reached.

Meanwhile Canadian-U. S. traffic was being routed over the Peace bridge at Buffalo, and two other bridges below the falls.

TAILLESS PLANE PROVES THEORY

Craft Damaged In Tests at Cleveland Airport.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Eugene Vidal, president of Aircraft Research corporation of New York, said today that trial flights of a snub-nosed, tailless airplane which ended in a ground-loop "have borne out our ideas."

The craft, which is only 10 feet long from nose to fuselage end, was damaged slightly yesterday at Cleveland airport when Pilot James B. Taylor landed after his fourth trial flight.

The odd-looking ship, whose propellor is mounted at the rear of the fuselage, was built for Vidal's concern at New Philadelphia.

WEST'S HEADQUARTERS TURNED INTO CAPITAL 'GHOST OFFICE'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Interior department officials disclosed today that the office of Charles West, undersecretary, had been reduced to a skeleton basis.

West himself was not in today, but inquiry showed that his staff of five had been cut down to a receptionist and a stenographer.

The reason, it was said, was chiefly because the office long had been in "disuse."

A former member of the house from Ohio, West has been President Roosevelt's "contact man" on Capitol hill. He served actively in that capacity at the recent special session of congress, in connection with the wages and hours bill.

The senate public lands committee started an investigation of activities at the interior department ten days ago, delving, among other things, into allegations of "wire tapping," the inquiry was in connection with the appointment of Ebert K. Burlew, as assistant secretary.

Secretary Ickes was one of the witnesses. Burlew has been Ickes' administrative assistant.

Reports have been current for some time that there was friction between Ickes and West, who, it was said today, has not been going to his office regularly in recent days. West is a presidential appointee.

Interior officials said James Rohrer, West's brother-in-law and his official assistant, was one of those no longer connected with the undersecretary's office.

West formerly served Richland and nearby counties as congressman from the 17th district. William A. Ashbrook of Johnstown succeeded him after West's unsuccessful attempt for election as U. S. senator from Ohio.

PRODUCTION NOTES: Constance Bennett and Brian Aherne will head an imposing cast in "Merrily We Live," . . . Robert Young, Margaret Sullavan and Robert Taylor will be a powerful box office combination in Erie Remarque's "Three Comrades" . . . Gladys George is a hard boiled actress and Franchot Tone a Broadway columnist who battle over the adoption of two waifs in "Love Is A Headache" . . . And get a load of this: The young and romantic Allan Jones of "Firefly" will play opposite Fannie Brice and Judy Garland in "Everybody Sing." It will be Fannie's first picture in ever so long. . . . Robert Young is busier than Jack Benny's Bee for he is also cast in "Paradise For Three" with Henry Hull (of "Tobacco Road" fame) Florence Rice, Mary Astor and the delightfully mixed up Frank Morgan.

"The Hurricane."

The long awaited film version of "The Hurricane," the famous novel by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, co-authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty," makes its debut at the Ohio theater Saturday. Jon Hall, Dorothy Lamour, Mary Astor and Raymond Massey head the large cast. The story, which is set on the low island of Manukura, 600 miles from Tahiti, opens with the wedding of the native lovers. Their happiness is short, however, when the groom strikes a drunken white man who insults him. He is jailed and the balance of the interesting film follows his adventures as he escapes and returns to his home island just before the hurricane strikes. "She's Got Everything," with Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern, plays through today.

Exotic Miss Wong.

Anna May Wong, exotic Chinese-American actress, returns to the American screen in "Daughter of Shanghai," the Madison attraction today and Saturday. Although her screen career was launched in Hollywood, she has spent the last few years in London, making English films. She is considered one of the most beautiful of Chinese-Americans in the world. In "Daughter of Shanghai," she follows an adventurous trail around the world while trying to trace the murderers of her father, a wealthy San Francisco merchant. Philip Ahn, Chinese actor, Charles Bickford, always a hefty villian, and Larry Crabbe head the cast. "True Confession," with Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray, opens as a midnight feature Saturday at 11:30 p. m.

Well Balanced Bill.

A well balanced bill which combines a Western action film and one of the best dramatic features of last season, is being shown at the Majestic today and tomorrow. "Where Trails Divide" brings Tom Keene to Rawhide, a Western town, as a sheriff who is pledged to find the bad men who have systematically been robbing the Wells Fargo express coaches. The climax reveals a situation which gives the picture its title. Edna Ferber's classic of the northern lumber camps, "Come And Get It," makes a picture play of power and stirring action. An unusual romance of two generations runs parallel with the development of a lumber boss into a millionaire. Edward Arnold, Joel McCrea and Frances Farmer have the major roles.

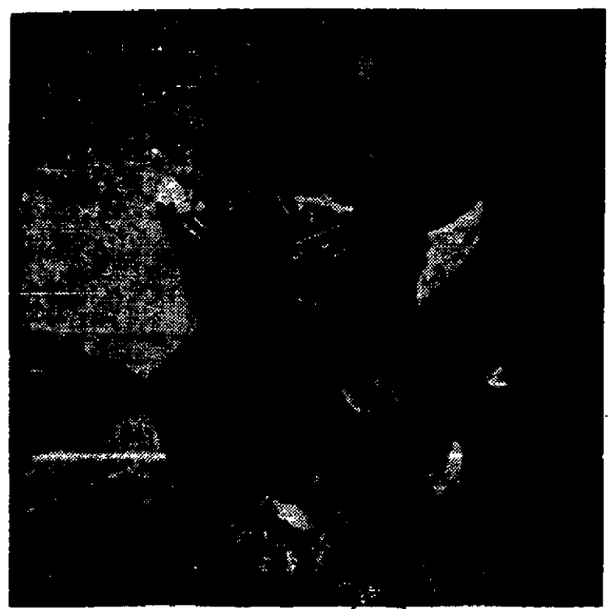
Law For Tombstone.

Ushered in with the roar of six guns and thundering hooves, Buck Jones sweeps into Tombstone to bring the law in the Western hero's latest horse opera, "Law For Tombstone," one of the Ritz features. The action revolves around a mining town in the days when gold was a magic word and lawlessness went hand in hand with greed. Muriel Evans appears opposite Jones. "Lady Behave" is a romantic comedy with Neil Hamilton and Sally Eilers, both of whom were great favorites in the early days of talking pictures. They still have thousands of loyal fans who will welcome them back to picture ranks. Joseph Schildkraut, one of the better character actors, is seen with them.

Featured In 'Dizziest' Comedy



Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray who were successfully teamed in the romantic comedies "Hands Across The Table" and "Swing High, Swing Low," are together again in "True Confession," opening with a midnight matinee at the Madison theater tomorrow. The claims of the producer that it is the dizziest comedy of the year seems to be borne out by the story which revolves around a "born liar" who confesses to a murder she didn't commit just because she can't help lying.

JUST LOVE-SICK

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(INS)—He wanted to see his girl friend in Vancouver, so he walked away from Oakalla Prison farm. He saw her and returned.

That was the story of 19-year-old Edward Earl Lippon, convicted burglar, when he returned to the prison and gave himself up less than 24 hours after he left.

WORLD'S LARGEST COIN

LONDON —(UP)— A new "world's largest coin" is now recognized by numismatists. The coin, a Swedish 8 daler of 1659, has been brought to London to be auctioned. It measures approximately 1 by 2 feet and is of solid copper, bearing the royal mint mark in each corner.

Seat Sale For Stage Show Off To Flying Start

Although the regular seat sale for the Pulitzer prize play "You Can't Take It With You," does not open until next week at the Madison theater box office, more than 400 seats have already been sent out on mail orders.

A good-sized audience appears assured for the Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman comedy which has been drawing capacity crowds and breaking box office records on its road tour.

Since its opening in New York City a year ago, the play has made the Sycamores one of the best known and most talked of families of the American stage. The Sycamores, headed by Grandpa Vanderhof, presents a picture of family life that probably exists no where in America—but it's rip-roaring fun to pretend that it does.

There is just enough realism in it—the maid who swears like a trooper and her boy friend who enjoys being on relief except that going down after the money breaks up his rest hours—to make the whole mad family seem possible, if not probable.

The cast that comes to Mansfield is the same that has played in all other Ohio cities, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus.

Maximum benefit payable under the Texas unemployment compensation act is $15 a week for 16 weeks in one year.

CHAPTER XIV

Caradad was so engrossed that she was genuinely surprised when Severance looked at his watch and announced it was nearly four o'clock. "I told my man to have the car here at four," he added. "I won't make you walk home. If you're not too busy, perhaps you'd like to take a drive before dinner."

"I would enjoy it very much," was the ready response.

Caradad had begun to feel that she was becoming immune to surprises in this city of wonders, but she was somewhat awed when she stood at the curb and saw a long sleek touring car, with the top lowered, drift to a stop. Two uniformed men occupied the front seat and one of them, the instant the machine halted, was out and opening the rear door. Caradad was not certain, but she thought he saluted stiffly. At all events, it was a sensation to be handed into so luxuriously an equipage and be asked if there was any particular route she desired to travel. There wasn't, so Severance supplied a brief "North Shore" and settled back in the seat at Caradad's side. The chauffeur did salute. It was all very grand. Until Severance remarked with disconcerting abruptness: "Just what are you thinking about, Miss Vardell?"

"Do you want to know exactly?" she encountered, her serious brown eyes meeting his.

"Precisely. I've been trying to guess for five minutes."

"You couldn't. I was thinking I knew now how it felt to win a popularity contest or swim the channel. All it needs is a shower of paper. . . . I've seen it in the movies."

"No wonder I couldn't guess," Severance chuckled. "You know we could sit up on the back of the seat and wave, if that would help. I don't mind."

They both laughed and, after that there was no more constraint.

At the end of the drive, Severance proposed dinner but Caradad declined—just why, she could not have told. She had been thinking of Terry on the way back. He had planned to take her driving this afternoon himself, would have if John Severance had not pretended that she had promised to go with him. After all, it did not seem quite fair. . . . Terry had done his best to show her a good time.

"I'll let you off this time," Severance told her. "Dare say you're feeling the effects of your orgy last night, anyway. We'll postpone it. By the way, you're not leaving soon?"

"I have no very definite plans," Caradad confessed honestly. "I'm having such an interesting time that it's a temptation to stay awhile."

"Fine. I'll look you up next week—maybe we can ride."

"I'd like to do that, but I didn't bring my riding things."

"Oh, we'll find some way to get around that," was his easy assurance.

Caradad dined at the hotel and went directly to her room afterward. Terry might call up. She would enjoy telling him of her trip with Severance and she knew that Terry would be interested, even though Terry's name had not been mentioned.

However, Terry did not call up during the evening and Caradad owned a slight disappointment. All the following morning she kept in touch with the telephone, but it was after twelve before his voice came over the wire. He sounded harassed and apologetic.

"I meant to have called sooner, Dad," he told her, "but several things came up to unsettle my plans. I was waiting until I knew something definite. I'm awfully sorry, but I've got to be in Milwaukee this evening—think I'll drive. And it's just possible that I'll have to go on to Minneapolis—depends on developments."

"Why, that's all right," Caradad told him. "You mustn't let my being here interfere with your other plans. I understand that business has to come first. Shall you be gone long?"

"Hard to say exactly, but I don't think so. Nice of you to let me stand you up on a date this way. I'll give you a ring as soon as I get back—might be Monday. You're not harboring any crazy ideas of leaving town, are you?"

"No," she laughed. "You needn't get your hopes up. I'll be here when you get back, unless you stay too long. I've a great many things I want to do yet. Maybe I'll have a better chance if you take the social whirl away with you."

"And you're not figuring on leaving the Rushmore, either?"

"No. It scarcely seems worth while."

"Just wanted to be sure. I'll be seeing you soon. Think up some things you'd like to do and . . . good-bye."

Caradad had a little feeling of loneliness as she replaced the telephone on its stand. She had been looking forward to her visit with Terry rather more than she knew, it seemed. She was going to miss him. However, it was more than likely that she would hear from Mrs. Greenway. Or that funny Mr. Tankersley.

But it developed that Terry must have gone to Minneapolis, as several days passed without any word from him or from any other of Caradad's few friends in the city. She employed her time in a leisurely round of sight-seeing and shopping, viewing one or two of the current films. Each time she entered the hotel she looked for a note from Terry or a request to call him on the telephone.

When Friday came without bringing any word of the absent Terry, she found herself wondering and a little uneasy. It seemed very queer. Late that same afternoon, she was rewarded by a message when she came into the Rushmore. A telephone number to call . . . Terry, of course. Once in her room, she tossed her bag and gloves into a chair and picked up the telephone without waiting to remove her hat.

After a brief interval, a man's voice, and unfamiliar, came to her ear.

"Miss Vardell?" it said. "This is Mr. Tankersley's man. A moment if you please." Then, almost at once, another voice asking cheerily. "That you, Annie?"

"Yes," she said, not knowing whether to be amused or provoked.

"Fine! Say, Annie, how would you like to go to see your grandmother this evening—family reunion."

"What in the world do you mean?" Her curiosity had the best of her now.

"Annie Oakley, of course. Just discovered she's in town—on the screen. Coincidence, what? I forget the name of the picture. It's reshowing in one of the small houses down town—just happened to notice in the paper. There's sure to be plenty of shooting. I think we owe it to the family to be there. What says you?"

"Why—I'd like to go ,Mr. Tankersley."

"That's the old Oakley spirit! I'll drop around about seven-thirty. We'll fork our broncs and hit the trail for town. Okay, pard?"

"Okay," she laughed.

To Caradad's secret relief, Mr. Tankersley apeared to be perfectly sober upon arrival, but brimming over with high spirits. He reminded her of a small boy in his exuberant anticipation. If his Wild West flair was genuine, it was a curious complex for a city man.

"We should have had old Terry along," Nick remarked after assisting Caradad into a taxi. "I tried to get hold of him when I saw the paper—thought an old-time night might be good for his grouch. But they told me at the hotel he wouldn't be in until late. So I passed him up."

"But he's not in town!" Caradad explained. "He went away last week."

"Did he? Sure enough? Then I didn't get what the hotel chap said. I'm like that."

Caradad glanced curiously at Nick, but it was too dark in the cab to see his face clearly. She couldn't understand that message about Terry—unless the clerk meant he was expected home tonight. That must be it. And she would see or hear from him in the morning.

The picture proved more enjoyable than she expected, due largely to Nick's amusing comments. And Caradad owned a response of her own that her companion knew nothing of. The wide reaches of open country and expanse of sky, men and horses . . . it all made her feel strangely homesick under the guise of interest she attempted to display in the screen story.

The whole evening proved more of a success than she had anticipated. Mr. Tankersley took her directly to the hotel and sat for half an hour in the lobby chatting. For once, he seemed in a serious mood and not inclined to foolishness, asking questions about Caradad's home country, its people and general business conditions. When she spoke of his books, explaining that she had heard about them from Terry and Severance, Nick displayed an almost wistful eagerness. Would she like to see them? Then he would arrange it—very soon. After that, he took an abrupt leave.

Caradad's anticipated telephone call came the following noon. But it was from Gerta Greenway. "I've neglected you shamefully, dear," she apologized, "but to tell you the truth, I have been just a little under the weather. Oh, no, nothing serious, of course. I was just wondering if I might impose on you this evening. Are you busy?"

"No—I have no engagement for the evening," Caradad admitted a trifle reluctantly.

"Then I wish you'd take pity on me and come for dinner, just the two of us. I want to have a chat with you—I mean I think it would do me good. That's very sweet of you."

When Gerta Greenway replaced the telephone on its bracket after her call to the Rushmore, she lingered at the window of her living room staring moodily down into the street. A frown marred her usually placid brow and there was a shadow of doubt in her dark eyes. She was wondering if her expressed desire for a chat with Caradad Vardell might not have been a little obvious.

(To Be Continued.)

Between 1906 and 1912 the United States government helped 13,000 laborers to emigrate from Spain, Portugal and Russia to Hawaii because of a labor shortage there.

FIREMEN HURT IN APARTMENT HOUSE BLAST

Man, Wife Blown Out Windows as Explosion Unroofs Blazing Building.

TOLEDO— (AP) —Two persons perished and several were injured today as three separate two-alarm fires brought out virtually the entire Toledo fire department during the early morning hours.

The dead were identified by Firemen as R. K. Stewart and Dorothy Schaub. They were burned to death when an explosion followed by flames wrecked the Parcell apartments.

8 Firemen Hurt.

Eight firemen were injured and James Bell and his wife, Fern, were blown through windows when the explosion lifted the roof of the apartment. All were taken to Mercy hospital. The condition of Mr. and Mrs. Bell was reported as critical.

Previously fire fighters battled a blaze which destroyed Holy Rosary Catholic church and school on the east side with a loss estimated unofficially at $45,000 and another fire which damaged the Arden hotel building in the downtown section.

Nine sisters of the Notre Dame order fled their convent adjacent the church. Fire for a time threatened to spread to neighboring buildings Five families fled their homes in nine-degree temperature. The sacred host and costly vessels of the 37-year-old church were lost.

Twenty-eight residents of the Arden hotel were routed by smoke in the building as a result of a fire in a cigar store on the first floor. One woman was carried to safety down a ladder by firemen.

Smoke Damages Stores.

Firemen estimated damage from the blaze at $600. Operators of several small business establishments did not estimate their smoke loss.

Fire Chief Fred Schlorf said the Parcell fire might have been due to an accumulation of gas. He estimated damage at $15,000.

He said several occupants of the apartment climbed out front windows and were rescued by firemen. Flames shot 50 feet into the air during the heighth of the blaze.

A well-known Mansfield man and his father became so interested in a poker game downtown last Saturday afternoon that both forgot to go home in the evening for dinner. About 8 o'clock there came by messenger two cartons of chop suey from the wives of both. And the message with the supper said: "Don't let this interfere with your game—but we hope you choke!"

A Mansfield hardware store did everything it could yesterday to remind people to clean off their walks by having all sorts of handy snow shovels and scrapers on display on the sidewalk in front of the store. But a lot of people giggled when they observed that the sidewalk in front of the store was the only one on the entire street that hadn't been cleaned.

CLEARS DECKS FOR CIO OUSTER

A. F. of L. To Consider Expulsion of Mine Workers, Others.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's executive council today neared the time to consider expelling the United Mine Workers and other CIO unions whose charters are suspended.

President William Green said "Important action" was to come shortly. The council has been principally occupied with internal union difficulties since opening its mid-winter sesson Monday.

Joseph Ozanic, president of the Progressive Miners of America, placed before the council an accusation that the United Mine Workers, of which John L. Lewis is president, had fostered the prosecution of two recent Illinois cases which were adverse to the Progressive Miners and to labor generally.

WOMAN, MAN DIE IN DEATH CHAIR

Pay With Lives For Wedding Day Murder of Her Brother; 100 See Executions.

CHESTER, Ill. — (AP) — Two lives were claimed for one today in a double execution which sent a woman to the electric chair for the first time in Illinois' history.

Dry-eyed and calm, Mrs. Marie Porter, 37-year-old St. Louis mother, went to her death with the handsome triggerman she hired to kill her brother on his wedding day.

Angelo Ralph Giancola, 22, the slayer, preceded her to the Southern Illinois State Prison chair. He, too, went soberly, gripping a crucifix in both hands.

Their last words to Warden Joseph Montgomery and the 100 witnesses crowded in the small death chamber were practically the same.

Breathing heavily as his brown eyes swept the execution room, Giancola murmuded:

"Good bye warden, good bye father. May God have mercy on my soul."

Mrs. Porter, led up the 17 steps to the seconud-story chamber by two women guards, spoke in a low voice:

"I hold no malice toward anyone and may God have mercy on my soul. Good bye warden, good bye father."

The double execution was completed in 13 minutes.

GRAFT HUNTERS CALL HIGHWAY BOARD IN PROBE OF PURCHASES

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The senate's graft hunting committee demanded today to know why the Columbia Refining company received so many state contracts for gasoline on which other refiners submitted equal bids.

It planned to call in the state highway department board of awards, which decides to whom contracts shall go, to see if it could throw light on activities of a so-called "political go-between" who was in Columbia's employ.

At the same time the investigating committee awaited action from Glen Horn, state purchasing agent, who was ordered by Gov. Martin L. Davey to demand restitution from the Maher-North Coal company of Cleveland if he found the state was charged too much for coal.

The committee received testimony in Cleveland that the company charged the state $1.60 a ton for 10,500 tons of coal for which the firm paid 92 cents Furthermore, the committee learned that the coal was strip-mined, an inferior grade of coal, while Horn said he expected to receive deep-mined coal.

The governor told Horn in a letter that if the company was asked to make restitution, and failed to do so, "they must be barred from all state business."

The decision to call in the highway board of awards was reached after James Metzenbaum, committee counsel, prdouced state records showing the Columbia Refining company was awarded numerous contracts when its bids were no lower than as many as 17 other bidders. On the board are G. Murray Anderson, assistant highway director; B. H. Frasch, chief maintenance engineer, and Paul V. Goodman, highway purchasing agent.

"Columbia was never the low bidder in any case we have found," Metzenbaum told the committee. "But Columbia got the business after Mr. Weil was employed."

He referred to G. Lloyd Weil, former Akron mayor, who offered his services to Columbia and then brought the firm state orders for approximately 533,500 gallons of gasoline in 20 months, the committee was told.

KILLS OFFICER SHOOTING WAY OUT OF 'TRAP'

Killer Leaves Trail For Ohio, Indiana Police to Check; Wrecked Car Found.

BULLETIN

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — The state highway patrol informed the sheriff's office today that a man sought as the slayer of Policeman Aaron Laubach of Hamilton had been captured at North Hampton and was being brought to Springfield.

HAMILTON — (AP) — Police throughout southwestern Ohio put all available manpower today into a hunt for a filling station bandit who shot and killed Patrolman Aaron Laubach, 30, as he sought to end a series of hold-ups.

Corporal E. T. Shinn of the patrol reported the suspect wrecked his automobile on a stone abutment in Donnelsville and fled through a yard late last night, only a few hours after Laubach was slain here.

Seen In Cemetery.

Two hours later the suspect had been traced to a cemetery and several shots had been fired at him, but tracks in the snow led to a bridge and were lost. Patrol headquarters in Columbus said there was no positive identification of the man as Laubach's slayer, but Shinn said a bullet pouch was recovered from the blood-stained wreckage of the car.

Laubach, who joined the force in 1930 and was married Christmas day, 1936, had just entered the filling station in civilian clothes and taken a seat in a corner to guard it through the night. A bandit had held up Claude May, 45, the attendant, Jan. 15, and escaped with $182, and there had been several similar robberies in the neighborhood.

The robber entered, holding a pistol pointed at the floor.

"This is a stick-up," he told May. "I want the dough."

May gave him the contents of the cash register, but he demanded "the money hidden under the counter."

As the bandit stooped, Laubach tried to maneuver into another corner to get behind him. But the man wheeled around and snapped, "No, you don't."

The shooting broke out. May said he could not tell who fired first, but Laubach was struck three times while he fired his own gun twice. May ducked behind the counter.

When he came out, the bandit had fled and Laubach was lying on the floor dying.

All available police were called out and the Ohio highway patrol and Indiana state police notified.

Roxy Closes, Cleveland Has No More Burlesque.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Is "burleycue's" tinsel sun on the wane over Ohio?

Dwindling are the number of theaters featuring glimpses of the feminin form (at popular prices) in a commonwealth where once flourished the didoes of slapstick comics and caprices of the "ladies of the chorus."

The Roxy, lone surviving stronghold of burlesque in Cleveland, closed its doors last night —a stubborn holdout to the final curtain.

"They're looking for the funeral, but there will be no burial," observed George Young, Roxy operator. "Maybe the days of the strip tease are over, but something new will come along."

"Cleveland's loss is Canton's gain," said Young, explaining his Roxy cast would open an indefinite run there in February.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

They Bear on 1940.

AS THE days go by, the once cherished notion that the nine Democratic senators who opposed the president's court-packing plan and come up for renomination this year would be "liquidated" by the people, whereas the loyal New Deal senators would all be triumphantly re-elected with no opposition—that notion gets sicker and sicker.

So far as known at the moment, not one of the nine senators marked for the slaughter is in any real danger, while hardly a week passes without there developing the sad tale of another one of the faithful who is going to have to fight for his political life, with considerable doubt as to whether it can be saved. The latest is Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, the modest young lawyer, who in 1936 was nominated and elected "without opposition" as he says in his Congressional Record autobiography, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Fletcher. Mr. Pepper may be renominated this year, but it will not be without opposition.

CONGRESSMAN James Mark Wilcox has taken the field against him and, reports from Florida are, with very fair prospects, indeed, of winning. It should be a most interesting fight because of the contrast in the personalities of the men, the difference in their records and the fact that the result in a southern state like Florida might easily have a bearing upon the 1940 Democratic situation, which, whatever their factional affiliation, is in the mind of every public man in Washington practically all the time.

ALTHOUGH he has not been in congress long—this is his third term—Wilcox has made quite a record for political courage and independence. For one thing, he came out for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment in 1932 and defeated the popular Ruth Bryan Owen on that issue. For another, last summer, though he could easily have pussyfooted, he made a strong speech in the house against the president's court-packing bill. For another, he vigorously opposed the administration wages-and-hours bill. He is 48 years old, well liked in the house, strong in his district, able and sincere.

SENATOR PEPPER is ten years younger and, though this is his first year in the senate, already he has become one of the president's personal favorites. He strongly supported him on the court-packing bill and more or less has been taken into the presidential circle on the same basis as Senator Minton, of Indiana. For example, he was included in the group of left-wing senators who more than a month ago held a supposedly secret conference with the president at the White House. And he has had other marks of the presidential esteem. That he is qualified as an adviser to an extent that would almost make him a Brain Truster can be seen from his Congressional Record sketch, in which, after citing the laudable fact that he worked his way through the University of Alabama "firing a boiler" and as a waiter, he lists himself as a Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa and Kappa Alpha. In addition, he is a Baptist, a lawyer, an Elk and a Kiwanian.

HAVING gone to the support of his leader, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, in a fervent letter praising him to the skies, there is curiosity now as to whether the president will not extend similar support to his Florida friend if, as appears, he stands in need thereof. Of course, "Dear Alben," being the administration leader, is in a class by himself—and a defeat for him would be a blow to the president whether he wrote a letter or not. With Senator Pepper there is a difference, but his personal closeness would seem to wipe it out. However, should Mr. Roosevelt make a gesture toward the latter, it would affect the situation in two ways—first, it would make him definitely and openly the issue in the Florida primaries, which are held this spring; second, it would give every other New Deal senator with a primary opponent a right to demand a similar White House expression of approval. Also, Governor Johnson of South Carolina, who is expected to run against Senator Smith, and Governor Rivers of Georgia, regarded as likely to run against Senator George, undoubtedly would feel entitled to the Roosevelt blessing in the only way Roosevelt blessings can be given—by running as his friends against men certainly not his friends.

IT IS a question of how far a president can go in thus injecting himself into state politics without involving personal political risk. For example, should the New Deal senators, indorsed by the president, win in their primaries, victory would be attributed to the weight of the federal machine and the results would be merely that the president had held his own and not lost ground.

But should such senators, with the Roosevelt indorsement, be defeated, it could not help but appear that the state had gone on record as anti-Roosevelt. As that has not happened in any primary since 1932, and as it undoubtedly would have a decided bearing upon the Roosevelt influence in the 1940 national convention, these primary contests which have developed against the New Deal senators are full of significance and interest. The Florida one happens to be among the first.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The years are so SHORT:

I. The beauty and the chivalry of Hollywood were there. The great banquet hall was crowded with "big names" all dressed up and full of words.

Testimonial dinners are common in Hollywood, but this was one of the biggest. The diminutive chap who was the cause of it all sat at his honor table and heard the usual nice things said about him. "A man who. . . . A man who. . . . You all know what he has done. . . . Paramount is grateful. . . ." And so on, and so on, and so—

A short time later Emanuel Cohen, guest of honor, was no longer head of Paramount. There'd been some changes made. And just the other day, having effected peace with the studio and undertaken some independent productions for Paramount release, Cohen broke into the news again Said he was going to sue for breach of contract, Paramount having notified him their deal was off. Well, anyway, it was a nice testimonial dinner. . . .

II. She was just a plump kid who'd been brought out to Hollywood as a talent prospect. She could dance, and somebody or other thought she had something. But the way it looked now, somebody or other had been wrong. Her first option-time was approaching, and the outlook wasn't promising.

She felt it pretty keenly—enough to cry her eyes and heart out. A fellow came along, and found the tears flowing. "Don't cry, kid," he consoled her "I'm directing a western soon, and I'll ask them for you as the lead."

He kept his word, and Lucille LeSueur huddled her first option. Then she got into something called "Sally, Irene and Mary" and was made. The director of "westerns" isn't famous now, and his name eludes me. But Joan Crawford has kept on going.

* * *

III. She was as cute and pretty as a doll, walking across the studio lot to meet me for our interview. She was a "Follies" beauty (in a Hollywood edition of the "Follies") and the most winsome miss I'd ever seen—especially when she sat on my knee and poured out her intimate life secrets. Later it was very difficult to present an unbiased account of her personality, so completely charming was she.

My reputation as a prophet would be enhanced if I could truthfully claim that then and there I realized she was a million-dollar baby. To be truthful, I remember boring people briefly with accounts of "that cute kid" and then dropping the subject.

Well, she didn't remain a "Follies" beauty because they changed the title of the picture to "Stand Up and Cheer." But Shirley Temple walked away with it just the same!

WINDJAMMERS IN GRAIN RACE REDUCED TO 13

Scandinavian Fleet Sails For Australia to Get Cargo of Wheat.

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—(U.P.)—Nearly all the remaining square-rigged ships in the world are headed "down under" to Australia to participate in the famous annual "grain race."

Thirteen large sailing ships, "windjammers," have cleared European ports for the wheat-loading centers of South Australia. But not a one of them is flying the Union Jack or the Stars and Stripes. The honor for the fastest passage to Falmouth will be won either by a Finnish or Swedish ship this year.

All but two of the 13 ships belong to Capt. Gustav Erikson of Mariehamn in the Aaland Islands, and they fly the Finnish flag. They are the four-masters Passat, Pommern, Parma, Olivebank, Lawhill, Viking, Mosholu and Archibald Russell, and the three-masters Killoran, Penang and Winterhude.

94-Day Trip Won in 1937.

The Passat and Pommern both made pasages of 94 days last year, though the Pommern claimed victory by a few hours.

The other two square-riggers bound for Australia are both training ships, the Swedish Abraham Rydberg and the German Admiral Karpfanger. The latter took part in last year's race as L'Avenir, but has since been sold by Capt. Erikson to the Hamburg-American Line and refitted as a training ship.

One veteran of many grain races will not be there this year, or ever again. She was the C. B. Pedersen, which was sunk in collision off the Azores on her homeward voyage last year.

For the first time for many years most of the ships have obtained cargoes for the outward voyage to Australia this year.

Sailing Dates Vary.

The "windjammers" will load grain over several weeks time. Sailings usually take place between February and April, the Southern hemisphere's summer. The ships actually do not race each other as sailing dates vary too greatly for that. The winner is determined by the elapsed time between Australia and the English Channel. The vessels usually put in at Falmouth for orders. The winner's time depends greatly on the weather.

The Australia wheat trade profits from these "windjammer" races, because the cost of transporting grain to Europe is comparatively low as the ships have no fuel expense. The shipping cost per ton usually is under $10 and the vessels can carry from 4,000 to 6,000 tons of wheat.

CROONING TO PRISONERS WORST PUNISHMENT, SAYS OFFICIAL

LONDON—(INS)—The lowest form of punishment for convicts is crooning, according to Charlwood Dunkley, secretary of a British prison reform society.

Charlwood Dunkley bitterly assailed the much maligned "Boop-Boop-a-Doop" style of singing when he read that three crooners of a London band took part in a West End cabaret show given to 20 prisoners of Maidstone Gaol, Kent, Eng.

"It is quite unfair to inflict further punishment on convicts who are already paying a heavy price for their sins," said Dunkley.

With his chest swelling with indignation Dunkley added:

"It should be a deterrent to any man to become a criminal if he is going to have crooning inflicted on him when he gets in gaol.

"If crooning is going to become a regular form of entertainment in our prisons it should, of course, have the effect of reducing crime. That is the only thing I can say in favor of it."

"But to take crooning into prisons, where convicts must have quite enough to put up with already is unreasonable and reprehensible.

"No one objects to good wholesome entertainment, but as for crooning, well—" Dunkley could say no more; indignation robbed him of words.

While there are no means of telling whether the prisoners in Maidstone Gaol agree with Dunkley's sentiments about crooning, they at any rate have a taste for more serious fare as well.

"Journey's End," R. C. Sherriff's famous war play, has been chosen for the first production of the goal's newly-formed dramatic society, and will be staged there in February or March.

All the parts will be played by prisoners, and they will also provide the sound effects.

Two Killed, Dozens Flee Explosion, Blaze at Toledo

FIREMEN HURT IN APARTMENT HOUSE BLAST

Man, Wife Blown Out Windows as Explosion Unroofs Blazing Building.

TOLEDO— (AP) —Two persons perished and several were injured today as three separate two-alarm fires brought out virtually the entire Toledo fire department during the early morning hours.

The dead were identified by Firemen as R. K. Stewart and Dorothy Schaub. They were burned to death when an explosion followed by flames wrecked the Parcell apartments.

8 Firemen Hurt.

Eight firemen were injured and James Bell and his wife, Fern, were blown through windows when the explosion lifted the roof of the apartment. All were taken to Mercy hospital. The condition of Mr. and Mrs. Bell was reported as critical.

Previously fire fighters battled a blaze which destroyed Holy Rosary Catholic church and school on the east side with a loss estimated unofficially at $45,000 and another fire which damaged the Arden hotel building in the downtown section.

Nine sisters of the Notre Dame order fled their convent adjacent the church. Fire for a time threatened to spread to neighboring buildings. Five families fled their homes in nine-degree temperature. The sacred host and costly vessels of the 37-year-old church were lost.

Twenty-eight residents of the Arden hotel were routed by smoke in the building as a result of a fire in a cigar store on the first floor. One woman was carried to safety down a ladder by firemen.

Smoke Damages Stores.

Firemen estimated damage from the blaze at $600. Operators of several small business establishments did not estimate their smoke loss.

Fire Chief Fred Schlorf said the Parcell fire might have been due to an accumulation of gas. He estimated damage at $15,000.

He said several occupants of the apartment climbed out front windows and were rescued by firemen. Flames shot 50 feet into the air during the heighth of the blaze.

A well-known Mansfield man and his father became so interested in a poker game downtown last Saturday afternoon that both forgot to go home in the evening for dinner. About 8 o'clock there came by messenger two cartons of chop suey from the wives of both. And the message with the supper said: "Don't let this interfere with your game—but we hope you choke!"

A Mansfield hardware store did everything it could yesterday to remind people to clean off their walks by having all sorts of handy snow shovels and scrapers on display on the sidewalk in front of the store. But a lot of people giggled when they observed that the sidewalk in front of the store was the only one on the entire street that hadn't been cleaned.

WOMAN, MAN DIE IN DEATH CHAIR

Pay With Lives For Wedding Day Murder of Her Brother; 100 See Executions.

CHESTER, Ill. — (AP) — Two lives were claimed for one today in a double execution which sent a woman to the electric chair for the first time in Illinois' history.

Dry-eyed and calm, Mrs. Marie Porter, 37-year-old St. Louis mother, went to her death with the handsome triggerman she hired to kill her brother on his wedding day.

Angelo Ralph Giancola, 22, the slayer, preceded her to the Southern Illinois State Prison chair. He, too, went soberly, gripping a crucifix in both hands.

Their last words to Warden Joseph Montgomery and the 100 witnesses crowded in the small death chamber were practically the same.

Breathing heavily as his brown eyes swept the execution room, Giancola murmuded:

"Good bye warden, good bye father. May God have mercy on my soul."

Mrs. Porter, led up the 17 steps to the seconud-story chamber by two women guards, spoke in a low voice:

"I hold no malice toward anyone and may God have mercy on my soul. Good bye warden, good bye father."

The double execution was completed in 13 minutes.

GRAFT HUNTERS CALL HIGHWAY BOARD IN PROBE OF PURCHASES

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The senate's graft hunting committee demanded today to know why the Columbia Refining company received so many state contracts for gasoline on which other refiners submitted equal bids.

It planned to call in the state highway department board of awards, which decides to whom contracts shall go, to see if it could throw light on activities of a so-called "political go-between" who was in Columbia's employ.

At the same time the investigating committee awaited action from Glen Horn, state purchasing agent, who was ordered by Gov. Martin L. Davey to demand restitution from the Maher-North Coal company of Cleveland if he found the state was charged too much for coal.

The committee received testimony in Cleveland that the company charged the state $1.60 a ton for 10,500 tons of coal for which the firm paid 92 cents Furthermore, the committee learned that the coal was strippmined, an inferior grade of coal, while Horn said he expected to receive deep-mined coal.

The governor told Horn in a letter that if the company was asked to make restitution, and failed to do so, "they must be barred from all state business."

The decision to call in the highway board of awards was reached after James Metzenbaum, committee counsel, prdouced state records showing the Columbia Refining company was awarded numerous contracts when its bids were no lower than as many as 17 other bidders. On the board are G. Murray Anderson, assistant highway director; B. H. Frasch, chief maintenance engineer, and Paul V. Goodman, highway purchasing agent.

"Columbia was never the low bidder in any case we have found," Metzenbaum told the committee. "But Columbia got the business after Mr. Weil was employed."

He referred to G. Lloyd Weil, former Akron mayor, who offered his services to Columbia and then brought the firm state orders for approximately 533,500 gallons of gasoline in 20 months, the committee was told.

KILLS OFFICER SHOOTING WAY OUT OF 'TRAP'

Killer Leaves Trail For Ohio, Indiana Police to Check; Wrecked Car Found.

BULLETIN

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — The state highway patrol informed the sheriff's office today that a man sought as the slayer of Policeman Aaron Laubach of Hamilton had been captured at North Hampton and was being brought to Springfield.

HAMILTON — (AP) — Police throughout southwestern Ohio put all available manpower today into a hunt for a filling station bandit who shot and killed Patrolman Aaron Laubach, 30, as he sought to end a series of hold-ups.

Corporal E. T. Shinn of the patrol reported the suspect wrecked his automobile on a stone abutment in Donnelsville and fled through a yard late last night, only a few hours after Laubach was slain here.

Seen In Cemetery.

Two hours later the suspect had been traced to a cemetery and several shots had been fired at him, but tracks in the snow led to a bridge and were lost. Patrol headquarters in Columbus said there was no positive identification of the man as Laubach's slayer, but Shinn said a bullet pouch was recovered from the blood-stained wreckage of the car.

Laubach, who joined the force in 1930 and was married Christmas day, 1936, had just entered the filling station in civilian clothes and taken a seat in a corner to guard it through the night. A bandit had held up Claude May, 45, the attendant, Jan. 15, and escaped with $182, and there had been several similar robberies in the neighborhood.

The robber entered, holding a pistol pointed at the floor.

"This is a stick-up," he told May. "I want the dough."

May gave him the contents of the cash register, but he demanded "the money hidden under the counter."

As the bandit stooped, Laubach tried to maneuver into another corner to get behind him. But the man wheeled around and snapped, "No, you don't."

The shooting broke out. May said he could not tell who fired first, but Laubach was struck three times while he fired his own gun twice May ducked behind the counter.

When he came out, the bandit had fled and Laubach was lying on the floor dying.

All available police were called out and the Ohio highway patrol and Indiana state police notified.

LAST ONE GOES

Roxy Closes, Cleveland Has No More Burlesque.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Is "burleycue's" tinsel sun on the wane over Ohio?

Dwindling are the number of theaters featuring glimpses of the feminin form (at popular prices) in a commonwealth where once flourished the didoes of slapstick comics and caprices of the "ladies of the chorus."

The Roxy, lone surviving stronghold of burlesque in Cleveland, closed its doors last night —a stubborn holdout to the final curtain

"They're looking for the funeral, but there will be no burial," observed George Young, Roxy operator. "Maybe the days of the strip tease are over, but something new will come along."

"Cleveland's loss is Canton's gain," said Young, explaining his Roxy cast would open an indefinite run there in February.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

They Bear on 1940.

AS THE days go by, the once cherished notion that the nine Democratic senators who opposed the president's court-packing plan and come up for renomination this year would be "liquidated" by the people, whereas the loyal New Deal senators would all be triumphantly re-elected with no opposition—that notion gets sicker and sicker.

So far as known at the moment, not one of the nine senators marked for the slaughter is in any real danger, while hardly a week passes without there developing the sad tale of another one of the faithful who is going to have to fight for his political life, with considerable doubt as to whether it can be saved. The latest is Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, the modest young lawyer, who in 1936 was nominated and elected "without opposition" as he says in his Congressional Record autobiography, to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Fletcher. Mr. Pepper may be renominated this year, but it will not be without opposition.

CONGRESSMAN James Mark Wilcox has taken the field against him and, reports from Florida are, with very fair prospects, indeed, of winning. It should be a most interesting fight because of the contrast in the personalities of the men, the difference in their records and the fact that the result in a southern state like Florida might easily have a bearing upon the 1940 Democratic situation, which, whatever their factional affiliation, is in the mind of every public man in Washington practically all the time.

ALTHOUGH he has not been in congress long—this is his third term—Wilcox has made quite a record for political courage and independence. For one thing, he came out for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment in 1932, and defeated the popular Buck Bryan Owen on that issue. For another, last summer, though he could easily have pussyfooted, he made a strong speech in the house against the president's court-packing bill. For another, he vigorously opposed the administration wages-and-hours bill. He is 48 years old, well liked in the house, strong in his district, able and sincere.

SENATOR PEPPER is ten years younger and, though this is his first year in the senate, already he has become one of the president's personal favorites. He strongly supported him on the court-packing bill and more or less has been taken into the presidential circle on the same basis as Senator Minton, of Indiana. For example, he was included in the group of left-wing senators who more than a month ago held a supposedly secret conference with the president at the White House. And he has had other marks of the presidential esteem. That he is qualified as an adviser to an extent that would almost make him a Brain Truster can be seen from his Congressional Record sketch, in which, after citing the laudable fact that he worked his way through the University of Alabama "firing a boiler" and as a waiter, he lists himself as a Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa and Kappa Alpha. In addition, he is a Baptist, a lawyer, an Elk and a Kiwanian.

HAVING gone to the support of his leader, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, in a fervent letter praising him to the skies, there is curiosity now as to whether the president will not extend similar support to his Florida friend if, as appears, he stands in need thereof. Of course, "Dear Alben," being the administration leader, is in a class by himself—and a defeat for him would be a blow to the president whether he wrote a letter or not. With Senator Pepper there is a difference, but his personal closeness would seem to wipe it out. However, should Mr. Roosevelt make a gesture toward the latter, it would affect the situation in two ways—first, it would make him definitely and openly the issue in the Florida primaries, which are held this spring; second, it would give every other New Deal senator with a primary opponent a right to demand a similar White House expression of approval. Also, Governor Johnson of South Carolina, who is expected to run against Senator Smith, and Governor Rivers of Georgia, regarded as likely to run against Senator George, undoubtedly would feel entitled to the Roosevelt blessing. It may be they would be running as his friends against men certainly not his friends.

IT IS a question of how far a president can go in thus injecting himself into state politics without involving personal political risk. For example, should the New Deal senators, indorsed by the president, win in their primaries, victory would be attributed to the weight of the federal machine and the results would be merely that the president had held his own and not lost ground.

But should such senators, with the Roosevelt indorsement, be defeated, it could not help but appear that the state had gone on record as anti-Roosevelt. As that has not happened in any primary since 1932, and as it undoubtedly would have a decided bearing upon the Roosevelt influence in the 1940 national convention, these primary contests which have developed against the New Deal senators are full of significance and interest. The Florida one happens to be among the first.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The years are so SHORT:

I. The beauty and the chivalry of Hollywood were there. The great banquet hall was crowded with "big names" all dressed up and full of words.

Testimonial dinners are common in Hollywood, but this was one of the biggest. The diminutive chap who was the cause of it all sat at his honor table and heard the usual nice things said about him. "A man who. . . . A man who. . . . You all know what he has done. . . . Paramount is grateful. . . ." And so on, and so on, and so—

A short time later Emanuel Cohen, guest of honor, was no longer head of Paramount. There'd been some changes made. And just the other day, having effected peace with the studio and undertaken some independent productions for Paramount release, Cohen broke into the news again. Said he was going to sue for breach of contract. Paramount having notified him their deal was off. Well, anyway, it was a nice testimonial dinner. . . .

II. She was just a plump kid who'd been brought out to Hollywood as a talent prospect. She could dance, and somebody or other thought she had something. But the way it looked now, somebody or other had been wrong. Her first option-time was approaching, and the outlook wasn't promising.

She felt it pretty keenly—enough to cry her eyes and heart out. A fellow came along, and found the tears flowing. "Don't cry, kid," he consoled her. "I'm directing a western soon, and I'll ask them for you as the lead."

He kept his word, and Lucille LeSueur hurdled her first option. Then she got into something called "Sally, Irene and Mary" and was made. The director of "westerns" isn't famous now, and his name eludes me. But Joan Crawford has kept on going.

* * *

III. She was as cute and pretty as a doll, walking across the studio lot to meet me for our interview. She was a "Follies" beauty (in a Hollywood edition of the "Follies") and the most winsome miss I'd ever seen—especially when she sat on my knee and poured out her intimate life secrets. Later it was very difficult to present an unbiased account of her personality, so completely charming was she.

My reputation as a prophet would be enhanced if I could truthfully claim that then and there I realized she was a million-dollar baby. To be truthful, I remember boring people briefly with accounts of "that cute kid" and then dropping the subject.

Well, she didn't remain a "Follies" beauty because they changed the title of the picture to "Stand Up and Cheer." But Shirley Temple walked away with it just the same!

Constant Criticism Is Annoying

By VIRGINIA LEE

I SUPPOSE all of us are tactless at times. I know I am.

But what is the matter with a person who makes a point of criticizing everything and everybody? Who, if she hears an uncomplimentary remark about even her dearest friend, will repeat that remark to said friend. To my mind the meanest type of person is the one who keeps complimentary remarks she hears to herself, but gleefully tells the ones that hurt people's feelings.

The odd part of this sort of person is that they are usually very fine people in many ways. If they criticize you, your clothes, your house, your friends one moment, they often do something lovely for you the next. So you can't just give them up. count them out of your life, and let it go at that.

I know one such person—who doesn't? Recently when someone who knew us both slightly, and whom we met at a social function, tried to introduce us, she said, "Why she—meaning me—is my best friend!" And she does lovely things for me, and gives me beautiful things.

She makes me so mad, at times, however, that I feel I never want to see her again. She pries into my affairs, criticizes my ways of doing things, and insinuates that my house is filled with "junk." "Are you going to have that chair re-upholstered?" she asks. "It belongs to that atrocious period, you know."

Have you one of these little fairies "among your friends?" If you have, I'm sorry, but maybe they are salutary for us. They have their compensations, as I have said, and maybe they give us a good idea or two now and then. My friend does, as I have said before. But it is a terrific habit to get into and loses her many friends. For her tactlessness is not confined to her "best friend." Everywhere she goes she makes the same remarks — driving strong, silent men to cursing, and hurting their wives' feelings.

To an acquaintance who was wearing a new dress for the second or third time she once remarked, "My, you're getting a lot of wear out of that dress?" Imagine the woman's feelings! She told me recently that some one—she didn't say who—said I "talked all the time." I thought if someone had said it it wasn't the place of my "best friend" to tell me. But I'm trying to be philosophical and watching my step. Maybe I do talk too much and don't give the others a chance.

GINGER has two boy friends, likes them both and can't choose between them. One she has gone with at two different times After going with her for a few months he would announce that he wasn't coming back for a while; that he had to save some money, or that he wanted to "go with the boys and have some fun." She has been going with the second boy since the first left her the last time. He has come back now and says he won't leave her again. Which shall she choose?

If you like each equally, I'd keep the second, Ginger. You have no assurance that the first one will keep his word, and if he has been able to get along without you so well in the past, he probably can in the future. I don't see why you should give up your present boy friend for the other, and I wouldn't if I were you.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

I fairly jumped when Mary put her unexpected query as to whether we could not go to New York "right away." Only a moment before it had seemed something impossible of achievement, this fulfillment of Dicky's wish to have me get to the city as soon as possible. With a mental chapeau dip in his direction, I recalled his prophecy that Mary might have a feverish desire to get to work as the best anodyne for the grief and the anger against her father-in-law which were consuming her.

But was she fit to take even the journey of a little over a hundred miles to the city? I looked at her narrowly before answering, and saw that the resilience of youth and her naturally volatile temperament had smoother out the grief-ravaged lines of her face and eased the tenseness of her muscles. Her face was still pallid, and her eyes too bright, but I decided that her own diagnosis was right. The best thing for her just now was work, and to get away from the scene of her parting with Noel.

Wants to Go Now.

"Of course we can go today if you wish," I told her soothingly, "but are you sure you feel up to it?"

"I'm sure I don't feel up to staying around here with nothing to do," she said. "But I don't want to inconvenience you."

"No chance of that," I said. "Instead, it fits in very nicely with my own plans."

"Then let's go now!" she said, sitting up in bed abruptly. But I noticed that there came a flash of pain into her eyes as she made the movement, and guessed that a headache was the aftermath penalty of her emotional storm of the night before.

"Not so fast!" I said smiling, and pressed her gently back upon her pillows. "We have plenty of time, and I'm going to be very sure you are fit to go before we start."

"You don't mean you're not going to let me go until you get a doctor here who says I may?" she demanded, and again there was rebellion in her tone.

"No, the occasion doesn't demand that" I said, smilngi down at her. "but—would you like to hear a secret?"

Does Mary Know?

"Of course." Her eyes were attentive, curious.

"Your Uncle Dicky wants me to be free to come out here for a day, or to help him if he needs me—"

"Help him!" she interrupted, and I saw a startled, knowing look leap into her eyes. Then she apologized.

"Please forgive me for interrupting you," she pleaded. "But the idea of Uncle Dicky's needing help except for taking care of his packing seemed so absurd. Please go on."

For the fraction of a second, I could not compel my voice to speak. Her look had been revelatory. She knew something—how little, or how much, I could not determine—of Dicky's reasons for wanting me at hand. But, of course, I could not question her about her knowledge.

Reveals Their Plans.

"Because of your father-in-law's peculiar conduct and attitude toward you," I said when I coud control my voice, "neither your uncle nor I are willing that you should be left alone in the hotel. Therefore, your uncle has engaged Miss Whitlock, the nurse, remember—"

"Who helped stage that substitution of Allen Drake for Grandpa Spencer?" Mary countered. "Will I ever forget her? She was a peach. Do you mean?—"

"I mean she's going with us to the city at your uncle's expense, so that Mr. Veritzen will have no possible control over her. She will occupy a room on the same floor unless I am away. Then, for the time of my absence, she will move into your suite. And she will be at hand, whenever I am away."

"Sounds mighty good," Mary commented heartily, to my surprise and relief "With my dear papa-in-law in the offing, counting every step I take, and expecting me to stub my toe every second, I'm not going to make a move alone in any direction. I suppose your spiel about finding out whether or not I'm fit to go today means that Miss Whitlock already has arrived. Okay. Trot her around, and let her look me over."

Brims Tell the Story In Your Hats for Spring

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Fashion Editor)

Shirred Ribbon on Brim

Emerald Veil on Light Sailor

Navy Milan Pancake Beret

The news in spring hats lies in color, variety and renewed interest in brims.

That's the word brought from Paris by Sally Victor, one of America's outstanding hat designers, who recently returned with a turquoise toque tilted over one eye and a number of new Paris chapeaux in her luggage.

"Spring hats bloom with color," she says. "Generally it's grafted to a black or navy blue body by flowers, colored veils, shirred or ribbon trims, though a number of colored felt hats are also seen. Turquoise, a new rose-pink and burnt sugar are among the new shades, which include many muted tones, such as medium blues and greens.

"There is much variety in shapes—almost as much as there was this winter. Pillboxes, toques, sailors and forward-pitching hats inspired by Watteau's paintings are all good. Mingled with the talked-of low crowns, there are some high crowns and high-trimmed low ones.

"But I think the real interest has moved from crowns to brims. Some brims roll back from the face, inspired by the Paris exposition's display of Goya's paintings which is having an influence on spring hats. Other hats pitch over the forehead. Many are accented with shirred, colored ribbons or jerseys or are trimmed with flowers.

"And to those of us who make hats, there is news and interest in the fact that sewn straw braids, such as milans, are very much in the picture."

Soft-colored "feminine" flowers such as hyacinths and lilacs are indicative of the floral trend, says Mrs. Victor.

Veils, still very much in the picture, are woven with colored meshes or splashed with colored dots. They are draped in new ways—under the chin or looped under the hair at the nape of the neck.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

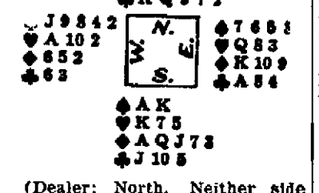
GRASP AN OPPORTUNITY

FINESSING toward an A-Q-J combination is usually of no particular value unless you are able to take the finesse twice. Such being the case, it is important to take advantage of your opportunities to make those two leads. Should you find yourself at one stage with the lead in the correct hand for the finesse, consider carefully whether to try it at once if there is any doubt about your getting two chances later.



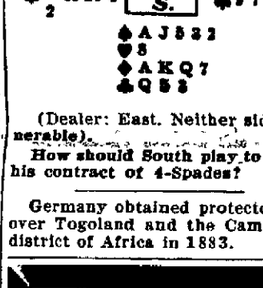
(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable).

The opening bid on this deal was made by South, who called 1-Diamond. West passed and North bid 2-Clubs. After 2-No Trumps by South, North took the contract to 3-No Trumps.

West started the defense by leading the spade 4, which South won with the K. He immediately attempted to set up the club suit and East, of course, held off the first two rounds. Declarer won the second round in the dummy and finessed the diamond J, which held. He then laid down the diamond A and gave up a diamond to East. East then cashed the club A and returned a spade. South cashed his remaining diamonds but had to lead away from his heart siut.

As South could not have made the contract without the diamonds, as well as clubs, and realizing that if the club A was in the hand with two others that it would be held up until the third round, he should have won the first club in the dummy, taken a diamond finesse, then led another club and tried the finesse again. In this way game would have been made.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable).

How should South play to make his contract of 4-Spades?

Germany obtained protectorates over Togoland and the Cameroon district of Africa in 1883.

To remove whitewash from a ceiling dissolve 1 pound of alum in 1 gallon of strong vinegar. Apply with a brush and let soak in well. Then scrape ceiling and wash.

To prevent marmalade graining, do not boil it too fast, and take it off the stove as soon as a little of it jellies on a cold plate. Be careful that you have pure sugar for this and all preserves.

Questions of Form Asked On Weddings

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: When addressing wedding invitations to intimate relatives, may the second envelope be written to "Aunt Maud and Uncle Tom"? Mr. and Mrs. seems so cold-blooded to write to a dear aunt and uncle.

Answer: If you address the envelope in your own writing, then yes, by all means. For that matter, even if the outside envelopes are addressed by a professional you could yourself address a few of the envelopes to those who are particularly dear to you.

Dear Mrs. Post: When marking the gravestone of a clergyman, is not his ecclesiastical title used? I know a professional reference is ordinarily omitted, but is not the church different?

Answer: No, not even in the case of a clergyman should title be used. His name should be given as John Henry Good. Below it, however, there could be a line explaining that he was for thirty years the beloved pastor of Trinity church.

Dear Mrs. Post: If the bride's long-sleeved gown makes it unnecessary for her to wear gloves, is it then proper for her attendants, whose dresses have short puffed sleeves, to wear them? I am thinking now of the rule that says the bridesmaids' clothes should not be any more elaborate than those worn by the bride.

Answer: If the bridemaids are to carry flowers, gloves are unnecessary. They can of course be worn if you choose to have them do so, but at most weddings today gloves are worn neither by the bride, nor her attendants—not by the ushers nor even the bridegroom. If the wedding is a very large and formal one—meaning cutaway coats or tails—then gloves are always worn by the ushers and also by the bridesmaids if their hands are not completely hidden by flowers.

Dear Mrs. Post: My niece is coming here to our house to have me give her a wedding. She is practically unknown here and her own friends live too far away to come to the wedding. How does one make up the invitation list under such difficulties?

Answer: Invitations should be sent to her intimate friends whether they are able to be present or not. Therefore, ask her that she send you her list immediately. It it always more flattering to receive an invitation than an announcement—and the fact that those who are invited can't come means merely that the bride (and bridegroom) would like to have them at the wedding if it might be possible for them to come. You of course make your list of your own friends and the invitations are then sent to the combined list.

WINE INDUSTRY IN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY BOOMS

Huge Streamlined Plants Produce Only Sweet Vintage Product.

FRESNO, Cal.—(U.P.)—The sweet wine industry, post-prohibition wonder child of the fertile San Joaquin valley, anticipated today that 1937 production records would show it produced nearly half of the nation's sweet wine last year.

The industry confidently expected records to be issued next month will show that it far surpassed a 1936 production total of 42 per cent of the nation's sweet wines.

To the San Joaquin valley has come the title "America's sweet wine capital" because connoisseurs and tipplers alike proclaim the California sweet wines—port, scherry, muscatel, angelica, madeira, marsala and tokay — comparable to those ripened in the musty cellars of European wine capitals.

Wine-Makers From Europe.

Employing Old World wine-makers, attuning their skill to mass production methods, some of the valley wineries produce millions of gallons each year. A winery in Fresno lays claim to being the largest plant of its kind in the world

Long stunted by the 18th amendment, San Joaquin valley wineries boomed after repeal.

A scant four years ago, they consisted mainly of shrunken pre-prohibition plants which had operated intermittently in the production of medicinal, sacramental and cooking wines and grape concentrate. Repeal found wine producers heavily in debt and unprepared to meet anticipated demand.

Despite lack of financial backing, old and new members of the families which had built the industry to its greatest heights a generation ago set to work renovating old wineries and building new, modern plants.

Antiquated equipment was replaced between vintage seasons. Adobe huts with their wooden vats made way for huge concrete plants equipped with shining metal tanks each capable of aging 1,250,000 gallons of wine at one time. Science hastened nature's processes of fermenting the vintages by time and time alone.

Today, completely streamlined, this important valley industry is the foundling of a $140,000,000 investment based on rich soil and a long, warm growing season adapted to production of sweet fortified wines.

MUSIC LAGGING, SAYS GRAINGER

Concert Pianist Says Its Most Backward of Arts; Education Needed.

TORONTO — (U.P.) — Music is about as far advanced today as sculpture was in the days when the Egyptians were building the pyramids and obelisks, according to Percy Granger, famous Australian concert pianist.

Asked whether the speed-up of modern civilization affected musical composition, the composer replied that music, far from being modern, was the most backward of the arts.

Granger said he got his inspiration from patriotism, but not necessarily was an Australian or a Briton. "I always think of myself as a Nordic," he said. "To me Britons, Scandinavians, Americans, Australians, Scots, Canadians, and others of the Nordic race are all the same.

Grainger said it took him from 1908 to 1918 to compose, "Country Gardens" and that his average composition was written over a period of 25 years.

The composer declared that people needed education in the international aspect of music.

England, according to Grainger, had made the greatest contributions to the musical world, with such outstanding composers as John Dunstable, William Byrd, Henry Purcell, Vaughan Williams and Cyril Scott.

HOTHOUSES AND SOUTH PROVIDE MARKETS WITH WIDE SELECTION

menu and among those available are curly kale, mustard greens and spinach.

Crisp green vegetables for salad are plentiful—romaine and head lettuce, escalora, French endive, curley endive, water cress, celery cabbage and savoy cabbage.

Cabbage itself offers variety, what with savoy, red heads, old and new green cabbage. Winter vegetables, such as parsnips, squash, beets and turnips may be found in all markets.

This is the time of year when housewives begin to "what in the world" to have for dinner. It's true there isn't anything new on the market, with the possible exception of hothouse asparagus, but the variety is almost as wide as in the early fall months.

From Ohio hothouses and from Florida and California comes a wide selection of green vegetables and fresh fruit. Cucumbers, tomatoes, radishes and little green onions on the Mansfield market are sent in several times a week from Ohio hothouses.

Green beans and wax beans are still being sold for moderate prices and may be classed with cauliflower and egg plant as being "reasonable." A dish of cooked "greens" brightens up the winter

Many housewives are enthusiastic about the new method of preserving fresh fruits and vegetables by freezing them, which preserves the flavor and color, and makes them slightly cheaper than the shipped in products.

Oranges and grapefruits have come down to normal again in price and are good quality. Saturday some of the markets will have fresh pineapple, strawberries, grapes, persimmons and rhubarb.

GARNER BUST PRESENTED

LUBBOCK, Tex. — (U.P.) — A bronze bust of Vice President John Nance Garner has been presented to the Texas Technological College by Mr. and Mrs. Among Carter of Fort Worth. The bust by Mrs. Electra Waggoner Bowman, New York sculptress and former Texan, will be placed in the West Texas museum on the campus.

FOR BETTER LIVING — THE MODERNIZED KITCHEN

SCIENCE LOOKS AT THE KITCHEN

Readers of newspapers and those interested in modernization of the home must have noted the constantly widening stream of information concerning the kitchen.

Hardly any question having to do with home modernization has received such thorough treatment. Women's club, women's magazines, and home planning experts have debated, considered, talked, measured and weighed the matter until today there exists a fine volume of definite information about the step-saving, efficient kitchen.

To help make this information easily accessible to its readers the News-Journal offers on this page to act as a clearing house for the dealer and a source of general information for the reader. Follow it from week to week for new suggestions from Mansfield's progressive dealers.

Kitchen planning is an art that requires unlimited consideration and should be studied thoroughly before purchasing equipment and appliances.

In order to be completely modern, today's kitchen should incorporate all the features of convenience and accessibility that are available. In making plans for such an important part of the home, it behooves the builder to scrutinize the most minute details. For instance, experience has taught designers that it is generally best to build the sink between the range and the refrigerator so that it is easily accessible to both appliances, saving the homemaker countless steps and a great deal of additional labor. An abundance of cupboard space should be provided as should ample artificial lighting and windows. The arrangement of these latter features depend for the most part, on the situation of the kitchen in respect to the rest of the house.

Kitchens of today are built around three vital centers, the range, the refrigerator and the sink. Since these appliances are so important to the kitchen, it is well to consider them first in laying plans for your kitchen.

THE MODERN KITCHEN—Like either of those shown above—can be yours at such a small cost! For information and suggestions mail this coupon to The Kitchen Editor, Mansfield News-Journal giving your name and address.

THE BOOKLETS listed below are free, check those you wish to have and they will be sent to you postage paid at no obligation. Valuable suggestions will be made on this page from time to time, for modernizing the kitchen—the home's most fascinating room.
